Long-Standing
Blood Diseases are cured by the persevering use of Ayer's Sarsaparilla.

This medicine is an Alterative, and causes a radical change in the system. The process, in some cases, may not be quite so rapid as in others; but, with persistence, the result is certain. Read these testimonials:—

"For two years I suffered from a severe pain in my right side, and had other troubles caused by a torpid liver and dyspepsia. After giving several medicines a fair trial without a cure, I began to take Ayer's Sarsaparilla. I was greatly benefited by the first bottle, and after taking five bottles I was completely cured."—John W. Benson, 70 Lawrence st., Lowell, Mass.

Last May a large carbuncle broke out on my arm. The usual remedies had no effect and I was confined to my bed for eight weeks. A friend induced me to try Ayer's Sarsaparilla. Less than three bottles healed the sore. In all my experience with medicine, I never saw more Wonderful Results.

Another marked effect of the use of this medicine was the strengthening of my sight."—Mrs. Carrie Adams, Holly Springs, Texas.

"I had a dry scaly humor for years, and suffered terribly; and, as my brother and sister were similarly afflicted, I presume the malady is hereditary. Last winter, Dr. Tyron, (of Fernandina, Fla.,) recommended me to take Ayer's Sarsaparilla, and continue it for a year. For five months I took it daily. I have not had a blemish upon my body for the last three months."—T. E. Wiley, 146 Chambers st., New York City.

"Last fall and winter I was troubled with a dull, heavy pain in my side. I did not notice it much at first, but it gradually grew worse until it became almost unbearable. During the latter part of this time, disorders of the stomach and liver increased my troubles. I began taking Ayer's Sarsaparilla, and, after faithfully continuing the use of this medicine for some months, the pain disappeared and I was completely cured."—Mrs. Augusta A. Furbush, Haverhill, Mass.

The treatment of many thousands of cases of those chronic weaknesses and distressing ailments peculiar to females, at the Invalids' Hotel and Surgical Institute, Buffalo, N. Y., has afforded a vast experience in nicely adapting and thoroughly testing remedies for the cure of woman's peculiar maladies.

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is the outgrowth, or result, of this great and valuable experience. Thousands of testimonials, received from patients and from physicians who have tested it in the more aggravated and obstinate cases which had baffled their skill, prove it to be the most wonderful remedy ever devised for the relief and cure of suffering women. It is not recommended as a "cure-all," but as a most perfect Specific for woman's peculiar ailments.

As a powerful, invigorating tonic, it imparts strength to the whole system, and to the womb and its appendages in particular. For overworked, "worn-out," "run-down," debilitated teachers, milliners, dressmakers, seamstresses, "shop-girls," housekeepers, nursing mothers, and feeble women generally, Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is the greatest earthly boon, being unequaled as an appetizing cordial and restorative tonic.

As a soothing and strengthening nervine, "Favorite Prescription" is unequaled and is invaluable in allaying and subduing nervous excitability, irritability, exhaustion, prostration, hysteria, spasms and other distressing, nervous symptoms commonly attendant upon functional and organic disease of the womb. It induces refreshing sleep and relieves mental anxiety and despondency.

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is a legitimate medicine, carefully compounded by an experienced and skillful physician, and adapted to woman's delicate organization. It is purely vegetable in its composition and perfectly harmless in its effects in any condition of the system. For morning sickness, or nausea, from whatever cause arising, weak stomach, indigestion, dyspepsia and kindred symptoms, its use, in small doses, will prove very beneficial.

"Favorite Prescription" is a positive cure for the most complicated and obstinate cases of leucorrhea, excessive flowing, painful menstruation, unnatural suppressions, prolapsus, or falling of the womb, weak back, "female weakness," anteversion, retroversion, bearing-down sensations, chronic congestion, inflammation and ulceration of the womb, inflammation, pain and tenderness in ovaries, accompanied with "internal heat."

As a regulator and promoter of functional action, at that critical period of change from girlhood to womanhood, "Favorite Prescription" is a perfectly safe remedial agent, and can produce only good results. It is equally efficacious and valuable in its effects when taken for those disorders and derangements incident to that later and most critical period, known as "The Change of Life."

"Favorite Prescription," when taken in connection with the use of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, and small laxative doses of Dr. Pierce's Purgative Pellets (Little Liver Pills), cures Liver, Kidney and Bladder diseases. Their combined use also removes blood taints, and abolishes cancerous and scrofulous humors from the system.

"Favorite Prescription" is the only medicine for women, sold by druggists, under a positive guarantee, from the manufacturers, that it will give satisfaction in every case, or money will be refunded. This guarantee has been printed on the bottle-wrapper, and faithfully carried out for many years.

Large bottles (100 doses) $1.00, or six bottles for $5.00.

CHIDESTER BROTHERS.

What They Were, and Who They Proved to Be.

The first time I ever heard of the Chidester Brothers, Molly Hayes spoke of them to me. "Have you seen the Chidester Brothers?" she asked, never giving me a chance to answer. "Oh, Jennie, they are too splendid for any thing! They are as handsome as they can be."

"Who are they?" I asked.

"Oh, they have been in town about a week. They are at Tomlinson's, and they drive a beautiful pair of blacks in a light wagon."

"But who are they? I declare, Molly, you never stop talking long enough to say any thing."

Molly laughed. She has the sweetest temper—and did stop a moment.

"They are"—she said, slowly—"oh, I don't know who they are, except just the Chidester Brothers; nor what they are, except—dentists."

"Dentists!" I exclaimed.

"Yes, dentists. They are traveling from place to place in their own carriage and practicing as they go. They enjoy traveling, and like to study the country and the people, you know. They have two offices at Tomlinson's, but they drive out into the country and call, and they will go to any one who sends for them. It is very convenient, now, isn't it?"

"But I never heard of such a thing! At least, not among real dentists. Who told you about them?"

"Told me? Why, they told me."

"Molly Hayes! Do you know them?"

"Yes, indeed! I was introduced to them at church last Wednesday night, and they have called twice. Aunt Eliza has ordered a set of teeth from them. I wonder they have not been here!"

"They need not trouble themselves," I said, dryly.

Molly blushed crimson and changed the subject. Soon after she went away.

Well, that was the beginning of it. The whole country went wild on the Chidester Brothers after that, and every one who came near me had something to say in their praise. The very fence-rows seemed to whisper of new teeth. I was busy just then, for mother had been quite ill, and, when she was able, father and Jim had taken her away for a trip. I was keeping house and ruling over the boys—doubtless with wisdom, and certainly with great wear and tear of mind and body. We lived two miles out of Meadowside, a lovely old country town, and although the girls were very good in coming to see me, and sending me notes and books and patterns by their brothers, little and big, I was not "in the swim" of the busy town life and fun as usual. I had to rely on the gossip of callers.

Molly Hayes did not come after that first mention of the Chidester Brothers, but I heard, from her brother George and from the other girls, of her being often with those gentlemen and very much pleased with their attentions. To every one except George I freely expressed my opinion of such chance acquaintances.

"I don't like strangers, anyway; but when it comes to strangers you don't know—"

"Hello, Jennie! Got you there!" cried Jack the cavalier. "They wouldn't be strangers if you knew them, would they?"

"And who are a sort of twin 'Cheap John' besides," I went on, superior to the interruption. "I can't understand any girl receiving their attentions, or even ranking them among her acquaintances."

"But, Jennie, they are so pleasant and so handsome, and really quite like gentlemen," mildly remonstrated Susie Brown, who was calling.

"Like! But I want the men I know to be gentlemen, and I don't believe a gentleman would think of peddling either teeth or tooth-brushes. One is of no higher grade of business than is the other."

"I think you are right," observed Mr. Heming, Susie's escort, and the very quiet assistant of Mr. Brown, our druggist.

Mr. Heming had been a stranger a year before this, but he had come to Meadowside well recommended. Besides, he was so very plain, it would never have paid him to be any thing but "eminently respectable."

"Of course I am right!" I cried. "Why, these men may be part of a gang of burglars, instead of gentlemen or men of honest and honorable calling. What if they should be some of the scamps who broke into Dr. Scott's house, over in Lebanon, and carried off his instruments and his new dentist's chair? I know they shouldn't come here as they go to so many houses, particularly with father and Jim away. I should never have a moment's peace!"

"I should think you would feel timid as it is," remarked Susie, with a glance round the room. We were eating fruit in the dining-room, where the sideboard and buffet were crowded with silver and pretty things.

"Where do you keep all these?" asked Mr. Heming. "You surely do not leave them exposed in this way during the night!"

"Oh, no, indeed! They are all carried up into mother's room. Mine is next to it. It is a terrible nuisance, and if they were mine I should just leave them here. The house is safe enough."

"You have burglar-alarms, I suppose?"

"No, we have not. Father talks of getting them, but there it stands—at talking."

"Then you do not sleep alone?"

"Indeed, I do. The boys are in the nursery and the servants in the attic. But I like to be alone. Dear me! I don't think I could stand it without a few hours to myself. Listen! That's the way it is from morning until night. Just excuse me while I settle them."

I ran up-stairs, and when I came down Susie and Mr. Heming were ready to take leave, and waiting under the hall-lamp.

"I believe this will be a match," I thought, as I kissed Susie. "And really," carrying on the same thought as I went slowly up-stairs again, "I don't see why it would not be a good thing. Susie is certainly a quiet, pretty little thing! And he is not half such a fright as I thought him. There was quite a glow in his eyes to-night. Usually, he is as dull as ditch-water. Not much like those overlasting Chidester Brothers."

As I set my candle on my dressing-table, I saw reflected in the glass the scornful curl of my lip at the mere thought of those Cheap Johns, as I had named them. No respectable dentist would do such a thing as this business of theirs. Where did they get the means to live as they did, while they carried it on? Puzzling over it, I fell asleep and dreamed of—Mr. Heming and Susie mixing and rolling pills together upon mother's silver salver.

Two weeks later a party of the young people came out to spend the last evening of my loneliness with me. Father and mother were coming home the next day, and I was heartily glad of it. Jim was in Boston, finishing his trip with some college friends. Among my guests of the evening were Susie Brown and Mr. Heming, Molly Hayes and one of the Chidester Brothers! I could hardly believe my eyes. But Molly was as unconcerned as possible, introduced him with that little air of hers which always says to me as plainly as words: "See what I have caught!" and rattled away all the evening as usual. As for him, he behaved very well, and, although I did not exchange words with him after the introduction, I must say I enjoyed looking at him on the sly. Nothing I had heard of his looks had done him injustice.

They all staid late. Mr. Heming and Susie were the first to leave, and Molly and the Chidester the last. After they had crossed the door-step I saw him pause and glance back at the hall and the stairway. It was a peculiar and searching glance, and gave me a chilly sensation of fear and dread. My suspicions were all renewed and strengthened. For, I will confess, the man's noble face and bearing had influenced me, even in the one interview.

Under the effect of that last glance, however, I had all the silver gathered up most carefully and packed in several baskets, and I concluded to sleep in mother's room instead of my own. Moreover, I opened the doors between the nursery and our rooms. I was not at all mindful of the delights of such utter loneliness. I went back and forth several times to the tumbled beds in the nursery, envying the rosy sleepers, and it was late, indeed, before I joined them.

Almost instantly, it seemed to me, I was broad awake again, and looking straight before me at a terrible, terrible sight.

There was a light in the room—a pale, uncertain, flickering light which streamed upward from the floor at the foot of the bed, and cast strange shadows on the ceiling. The door into my room was shut, but the one into the hall was wide open, as well as the window beyond it, opening upon the porch-roof. I felt the night-wind from it blowing over me. I think that woke me, and not any noise or movement, for I lay perfectly still and calm until my scattered senses returned and I knew what to fear.

"Burglars!" beat my frightened heart. "The Chidester Brothers!" came choking into my tightened throat.

I had too much sense to move or scream. I lay still as death, only drawing long, even breaths as if sound in sleep, and using my eyes for all they were worth. The shadows on the ceiling showed that things were being taken up and put down—our silver!—by gigantic hands, but all other outlines were so confused I could distinguish nothing. How long the time, how deadly cold the chills of terror that swept over me, no one will ever know who has not passed through it all.

Suddenly, I heard a sound—a sound which filled me with sickening dread. The boys were awake—were moving—were calling me.

The burglar sprang to his feet, light and noiseless as a breath, and stood poised and ready, his back toward me. There came the quick patter of little feet. He turned—his lamp flared up. In the glass opposite, above the mask which had doubtless slipped as he sprang up, I saw the face of the "eminently respectable" Mr. Heming!

Involuntarily, I uttered a sharp cry. Then, I closed my eyes and felt myself sinking away into helpless, hopeless terror. But the door into my room flew open with a bang, I heard Jack shout and Nutty scream; a rustle, a thud, a pistol-shot, confused voices, tramping of feet, and tremendous pounding and kicking on the porch.

Just let any one try "this sort of thing," and see how quickly events follow each other, and how many different sounds they can hear at one time!

I sprang out of bed, and the chaos began to resolve itself into some kind of order. Jack and Nutty were both telling me that there was a carriage at the door; the burglar was gone through the window and evidently into the hands of his enemies, for above the confusion down-stairs I could hear Jim—our brother Jim—roaring for the hall-door to be opened. Some one was pounding away on it lustily. I seized Nutty and Jack, as soon as I had hurried into my wrapper, and trembling in every limb, we rushed down the long hall and stairs.

The hall-lamp was burning, as usual. I hastily unbolted, unbarred and unlocked the great front door, opened it with a jerk, and threw myself into the arms of—the Chidester Brothers.

"I thought it was Jim!" I cried, starting away.

"Jennie! Thank God!" cried Jim, snatching me to him, as he rushed in. "Are you all safe? No one hurt at all?"

"No one! And nothing taken!"

"Just in time!" exclaimed the Chidesters.

"Just in time!" echoed Jim. "Boys, I can never half thank you!"

There were others trooping in and standing round me with startled and admiring faces. A dark and compact group wore uniform and carried themselves with the easy manner of men to whom nothing was new or shocking. In their midst, hatless and pale, and oh! how ugly, mean and common, I saw Mr. Heming.

I know now that there were not more than five or six men altogether, but that night they seemed to fill the hall.

"Jennie, you are shaking with a chill!" cried Jim. "You must go to bed at once. I'll take you up"—for I tightened my hold on him—"and call the servants for you. I expect they are too frightened to come out of their room. Just make yourselves comfortable, gentlemen; I'll be with you in five minutes."

He marched me to my room, and called nurse.

"Oh, Jim, one moment, please! Where did you come from? And who are the Chidesters?"

"First-rate fellows—my class, you know. They telegraphed me. But I can't stop, really. I'll be up again as soon as I can get away."

Then I covered my head among the pillows and had a good, hard and frightened cry. For I was frightened, now that it was all over. Nurse did her best for me by sending the boys to bed and keeping the doors closed. By the time Jim tapped for admittance I was quiet and ready to hear his story.

"Well, Jennie, we've made a big haul. That rascal is the master-spirit of the gang which has been at work round here for a year or two. He's an old hand at it, and his engagement with Mr. Brown was one of his clever dodges. He is a druggist, as he is half a dozen other things, but his letters were forged. The Chidesters saw him once in Boston when he was on trial, and they knew him at once when they saw him here. They are wide awake, both of them. About a week ago they heard something—I haven't got at the bottom of it yet, but two men who came to Tomlinson for the night had something to do with it—which put them on the track of to-night, and they wrote to me, but they had to make it a cautious letter, and asked me to hold myself in readiness for a telegram, but not to come without one. I was at their cousins'. They telegraphed last night, and met me at the train at the next station. Syd says he was here last evening, for he was half afraid I might not get home, and he thought he had better look round a bit in case any thing should come off to frighten you. By the way, how is it you never met before?"

"But why did he not tell me or some one?" I asked, passing the question.

"Wanted to catch the scamp, of course. And there was no danger, really. They did every thing in first-class style."

"Worthy the Chidester Brothers," I said, with a little sneer.

"Brothers? Why, they are cousins double first, to be sure, and enough alike to be brothers. Rich as Jews both of them, too."

"Then, why are they dentists?" I asked.

"Dentists?"

Jim's tone brought me upright in bed.

"Yes, dentists. And traveling dentists at that."

I never heard any one laugh as Jim did. I waited and waited for him to get through and tell me the joke until I was fairly cross. At last he wiped his eyes, and with only an occasional chuckle out it came.

They had laid a wager that they could leave Boston in their own carriage and drive for six months east, west, north and south, just as they chose, taking no money with them and sending for none, but living honestly by their wits.

"Not a soul in Boston believes they are keeping to the terms of the wager. They had not heard of them for a month when their letter came to me. What a pair they are! The idea of Syd and Cyril! They have had larks! Wait until I see them to-morrow! But you had better get some sleep. I am glad mother missed this. Good night!"

Of course, I did not sleep until daylight. And, of course, I thought of the Chidesters.

We did not see them the next day. They went off in answer to a telegram, leaving a note for Jim. The other Chidester Brothers, the real ones, their respective and respectable fathers, had found them out and issued an edict of recall. They entreated Jim to keep their secret "until the excitement passed off," and to make their apologies to me. "And pray tell her she was quite right. I thoroughly respect her for her refusal to countenance the Chidester Brothers"—so the note ended.

"That last was Cyril," said Jim. "He is rather the finest nature of the two. He could never have thought of such a trick. But Syd can start them. I would like to see Lucy's face when this came out at home. It is Lucy Thorne I mean. She is their cousin."

Lucy Thorne is now Mrs. Jim. And when the Chidesters came back—as they had to, to the trial of my burglar— Well, I might as well tell it in a word—I belong to one of them. Cyril Chidester found respect a very good foundation for a warmer feeling. So he asked me to overlook his folly, and sink the remembrance of it in his fame as "a rising lawyer." I overlooked it. And I am rising with him.—Theodore March, in Leslie's Newspaper.

REQUISITES FOR APPLES.

How to Make Orcharding and Fruit-Growing Profitable.

Success in orcharding has to do with varieties, treatment and sale. Cast all personal preferences aside, and select such kinds as succeed in our respective localities. This is most important. We must know the prejudices of purchasers—whether red or white apples prove the more popular; whether the size shall be large, medium or small. The question of quality settles itself. It is a fine theory that would compel orchardists to become public instructors; but if high-flavored, beautiful fruit can not be raised at a profit, that of inferior quality will and must take its place. Another strong point is to be content with few varieties—the fewer the better. "Succession of kinds" sounds plausible, as well as the assumption that when we have many varieties some one or more will surely produce a crop. That this is unsound reasoning many orchardists have learned to their sorrow. One thoroughly reliable variety is worth more than a hundred of doubtful character. With naturally good mellow soil all needed preparation is to manure with no stinted hand, and then plow deep and thoroughly. It is of utmost importance that the young orchard receive a good send-off; after that, if cultivated carefully for a few years, meanwhile cropping with vegetables, there will be no cessation of growth in the trees. This part of the programme is generally carried out; but, after cropping with vegetables ceases, how many people ever fertilize the soil, or care for the trees? More failures result from this cessation of surface culture, and proper pruning, than from attacks of insects, which, under preventives and treatment of recent years, are not considered a serious obstacle. How to place one's fruit properly on the market seems to the uninitiated a point of minor consequence; but when we perceive customers calling year after year for packages bearing the imprint of some noted orchardist, there must be a reason for it, and the solution is, that the fruit is carefully and evenly selected, preserved in first-class condition, and is, in short, just what the invoice calls for. Nearness to good market is an important factor in making apples pay; the nearer producer can get to consumer, and consequent reduced freight, the greater the margin of profit, of course. Finally, much depends upon close application and earnest work. Under the impression that trees can care for themselves many young orchardists have utterly failed.—Josiah Hoopes, in N. Y. Tribune.

Suspicious Submission

A small boy had been having a day of unmitigated outrageness, such as all children who do not die young are likely to have at times, and when he was ready for bed his mother said to him:

"When you say your prayers, Georgie, ask God to make you a better boy. You have been naughty to-day."

The youngster accordingly put up his petitions in the usual form, and then, before closing with "Amen," he added:

"And please, God, make me a good boy."

He paused a second and then, to the utter consternation of his mother, concluded with unbated gravity: "Nevertheless, not my will, O Lord, but Thine be done!"—Providence Journal.

—One of the curiosities of New York journalism is a small sheet printed entirely in Russian for the dissemination of nihilism in the land of the Czar. The people who read Russian in New York number no more than the readers of Sanskrit, and this paper depends entirely for its usefulness upon secret entrance into Russia in horse-collars, sleigh-runners and other ingenious devices.

—"What church members need in these days above all things," said Mr. Moody, "is the Bible. If they study the Bible well they will be in earnest. They will be like the man who said that ordinarily he weighed one hundred and fifty pounds, but when he was in dead earnest he weighed several tons."

A COUNTRY EVENING.

Away from sounding shore and mountain side
I came to where a country village lies;
And here I watch the moon rise through the trees,
And sit at rest beneath the summer skies.

The twilight thickens fast, and now the birds
Are sleeping; hushed are all their happy calls.
Across the village green the parish church
Stands, ivy-clad, with moonbeams on its walls.

The house-dog, lying near me, starts to hear
The restless horses neighing in their stalls;
The cricket chirps above the willow's sigh,
While flits the bat where deepest shadow falls.

The night wears on; the village lies asleep;
My soul drinks deep a draught of perfect rest;
Old dreams come back and future visions fair;
Old loves awake that slumbered in the breast.

On such a night the soul is free, and flees
The world of care, and pain and troubled sigh;
And could I sing that deep, sweet peace, the song
Would rise to angels' ears and thrill the sky.

DAMAGED MONEY

Interesting Work of the Government Redemption Bureau.

Singular Ways in Which Treasury Notes Have Been Lost or Destroyed—Few Attempts at Fraud—A Persistent Pennsylvania Correspondent.

When a small portion of a United States note is returned to the Treasury with sufficient proof that the remainder of it has gone out of existence, the Treasury will give the full value of the original note. Naturally the greatest destruction of money is wrought by fire, and bits of bills with charred edges are constantly coming in for redemption.

But several instances have occurred where men, in their desperation at their loss, have simply boxed up a lot of ashes, in which there was not the slightest trace of the original material, and demanded hundreds and thousands of dollars for them. Such requests are, of course, refused, and the senders are informed that their only recourse is to ask Congress by special act to indemnify them.

The extreme limit in this direction was reached in a recent case which is still pending. A Texan wrote to the Treasurer that a certain large amount of money belonging to him had been burned and that he had forwarded the remains by express in a box. The box came all right, properly wrapped and with seals unbroken, but when it was opened there was absolutely nothing but air inside of it. Evidently that was all that was left of the man's money, but the department sent him a letter inquiring whether that was his meaning of it or if he had forgotten to put in the pieces. His reply has not yet been received.

Next to fire the young baby is put down in the department as the most destructive agent. Innumerable affidavits are received in which John Jones, or whatever his name may be, "being duly sworn, deposes and says," that his infant son did chew up and swallow the missing portion of certain $5 bills, and that the said missing portions were thereby wholly destroyed and are now no longer in existence.

The fashion of keeping small pet dogs has often been the cause of many solemn affidavits being sent to the department. Your pug and your poodle seem to take especial delight in masticating the fruit and the reward of the many days of severe toil of the head of the house.

The fancy of mice for $10 bills as lining for luxurious nests has been impressed upon the redemption bureau by a long series of examples. Only a few days ago several hundred dollars' worth of nest lining was redeemed for a Southern man who had for many years given up all idea of finding his missing treasure. There was $700 of it in the first place, notes of almost the first issue made by the Government early in war times. It had been hidden away in a place supposed to be secure and had disappeared. A quarter of a century later, in repairing the porch of the old house, the nest of the wealthy mouse had been discovered, and enough of the fragments recovered to secure more than half of the original deposit.

Also from the South come most of the mouldy, worm-eaten bills which have been hidden in bottles or buried in the earth for years. There are not so many savings banks in the South as in thrifty New England, and hiding places are used.

But the habit of using the parlor or kitchen stove as a safety deposit vault is not confined to any one section of the country. Neither is the custom of burning up this treasure by some other member of the family who is all unaware of its value. Years ago the clerks in the redemption bureau ceased to declaim upon the stupidity of such people. It has become a matter of course with them, and they expect about so many letters every week from people who have warmed $2 pair of hands with $1,000 worth of silver certificates.

Evidence of a family row crops out in a queer way in the bureau occasionally. Mr. Blank sends on the half of a $10 note with a torn edge and an affidavit that the remainder of the note has been destroyed. Presently comes the other half with a correspondingly ragged edge and an affidavit from Mrs. Blank that the first half has been destroyed. Then the redemption bureau people know that there has been an exciting time over money in the Blank family, and there is before them a vivid picture of Blank clinging to one end of the note and his wife to the other end until it parts in the middle

There are not many attempts to defraud the Government through the redemption bureau and none have been successful. The sending of the two halves of a note of large denomination by different people, each one swearing that the other half is destroyed and asking for the full value of the note, frequently looks like an attempt to defraud, but the officials think that in most cases the senders believe they are telling the truth.

Counterfeit money comes from every part of the country, mutilated, probably by design, with requests for its redemption. It is always indelibly stamped "counterfeit" and returned to the sender. The redemption bureau is not a good place for "shoving the queer," even in a fragmentary condition.

The redemption bureau people must be entertaining correspondents. At least, people like to continue writing to them, when there is no necessity for it. A man up in Pennsylvania sent in a mutilated $5 bill some time ago, and received in return a check for $5 on the sub-Treasury in Philadelphia. Presently a long letter came from him complaining that the teller of the bank in his town, who had paid him thousands of dollars previously, refused to cash the check unless he brought somebody to identify him. What should he do? The bureau correspondent answered him courteously that the bank teller was undoubtedly following instructions and was doing right. He should take a man to identify him. Back came another long letter, with further complaint about the bank teller.

This time the treasury sent him a $5 bill and thought it had done with him. Not so. All the letters sent out are signed by the treasurer as a matter of form, but the man who actually writes them puts his initials at the upper left-hand corner of the sheet and under them is printed the direction, "Please quote these initials in replying," which, of course, is for the convenience of the department when the reply is received, so that the writer of the first letter can be readily traced. Now, after the Pennsylvania man had got his money and had no further business with the department, he writes another long letter inquiring why he should always be asked to quote those initials. He did not see that he had ever gained any thing by it, and he would like to know why he should continue to quote those initials.

Another courteous letter explained this matter to him, but he replied that he did not understand the necessity, and since it had never done him any good to quote these initials he would be blessed if he would do it any more. This did not seem to require any reply and none was sent, but the redemption bureau is daily expecting another letter from him.

There is in the treasury vault a brown wooden box eighteen inches long, a foot wide and eight inches deep which contains paper money of the nominal value of several hundred thousand dollars. It is not worth a dollar. The queer thing about it is the manner in which it was collected. Every bit of it came from the dead letter office of the Post-Office Department. Some portion of it is counterfeit, but the most of it was genuine money many years ago. The banks which issued it and the officers who signed it are gone and forgotten. It was all sent over to the Treasury Department some years ago, and Assistant Treasurer Whelpley undertook to trace up the various banks and get as much as possible of it redeemed. Occasionally he found descendants of some of these old bank officials themselves bankers, who were willing to redeem some of the notes for the sake of the signatures of their fathers, and in this way he succeeded in getting several hundred dollars' worth of it redeemed. But of that remaining, not a bill can be redeemed. A little of it is Confederate money, but most of it is of banks, State and private, that went out of existence many years ago. The oldest notes are dated back as far as 1812. One package contained $54,000 and another $9,000. The mystery is how so much money could have been lost in the mail. Neither the men who sent it nor the ones to whom it was sent could be found by the Post-Office Department, nor could Mr. Whelpley find any trace of them or their descendants. The $9,000 package was sent from Brandon, Miss., to Jackson, Miss., in 1849, and the letter accompanying it shows that it was sent in consequence of repeated demands. The most diligent search fails to discover the slightest trace of any such banking company as that at Brandon, Miss., which issued the notes, most of which are of the $1,000 denomination. The notes are handsomely executed, as are a large majority of those in the box.—Washington Post.

Wood Pavements in Europe.

It appears that wood pavements have met with greater success in some of the countries of Europe than in our own, the reason assigned for this being the fact of their having a foundation of concrete to rest upon in the former, at the same time receiving more attention there, in the way of maintenance, than here. Owing to its hardness and resinous quality, American yellow pine, it is stated, has become the favorite wood for this purpose in Berlin and Hamburg; and official report says that Frederick's Bridge, Berlin, which was paved in the spring of 1879 with the wood in question, is still in good condition, while the approaches, paved with granite blocks, have twice since required repaving. The Opera platz, also, in front of the Emperor's palace, was paved seven years ago partly with yellow pine and cypress, at a point where the traffic is greatest, while at other points stone blocks were used, the laying of the different surfaces with these several materials being at the same time. According to the report the area covered with the wood pavement is at present the one which is best preserved.—N. Y. Sun.

Cambria Freeman.

EBENSBURG, PA.,

FRIDAY, - - - JUNE 21, 1889.

IT looks very much as if the Prohibition party had been hit with a Republican brick.

PENNSYLVANIA is the eight State to down Prohibition at the polls. This is evidently a bad year for Prohibition.

THERE are three thousand six hundred men at work on the railroad between South Fork and Johnstown. The railroad company has done an immense amount of work already, but it will take months to get its line in good condition.

THE Johnstown Tribune, made its first appearance here on Monday last, since the flood. The enterprise of its publisher will encourage other business men to follow in his footsteps and in the busy hum of industry, to push forward and retrieve the fortunes lost on that disastrous day.

THE suffrage amendment proposing to abolish the poll tax qualification of voters is believed to be defeated. Owing to the interest in the prohibitory amendment, the vote on the suffrage amendment was lost sight of and the returns are incomplete, but it is generally believed to have been defeated.

TWO hundred and one votes against and 160 for abolishing the hereditary principal of the British House of Lords! exclaims the New York Press. A change of twenty-one votes in the House of Commons would have meant a majority. Fortunately for the House of Lords, it is still, as it was written in "Iolanthe," doing nothing in particular, and doing it very well.

IT seems that Brother Blaine was congratulated prematurely upon the Samoan treaty. He was not quite satisfied with the protocol and required some amendments. But this need cause no alarm. The protocol followed Mr. Bayard's demands so closely that Mr. Blaine would not have been able to call the achievement his if he had not been allowed to put something in himself.

THE Democratic National Committee held a special meeting in New York on Tuesday last. Proper action was had as to the death of the late Chairmen William H. Barnum, of Connecticut; two new members to fill vacancies from South Carolina and Connecticut were admitted, and Colonel Calvin S. Brice, of Ohio, was elected chairman of the National Committee in place of Mr. Barnum.

WHO shall say that Governor Beaver, says the Altoona Mirror, is not equal to the greatest ermergency? He went to Johnstown a full week after the world had stood aghast at the horror and "wept like a child" while others worked. And now two weeks after the horror he issues a proclamation. Along in July he may have something to say about the necessity of burying the dead.

THE Superintendenent of the Census has issued a circular letter to the medical and surgical practitioners throughout the country asking their co-operation in the preparation of the mortality and vital statistics for the next national enumeration. Books of registry can be obtained upon application to the Census Office at Washington. This is a work which every physician will be glad to help on.

THE Philadelphia Leager, a staunch Republican paper gives President Harrison the following friendly warning:

Mr. President, either your Attorney General has made a mistake or you have been led into error—if the published correspondence between the department of justice and Justice Sandford, of Utah, be true. The judge comes out of that correspondence with by far the better credit, so that if there is anything behind of a nature to help the executive it had better be brought promptly to the front.

THE Johnstown Tribune of Wednesday says: We ofen hear it said that the worst wreck of all is on the South Side. To the eye, yes; for there many houses from the North side went. But the real ruin is where there are neither houses nor people, as in Woodvale, the Second Ward of Conemaugh Borough, and, with the exception of a house or two, the Second and Third Wards of Johnstown, and a good part of Cambria. There is ruin in the lower portions of the South Side, but not complete and pathetic desolation as in the other districts named. Nothing existent will compare with nihility, and it is only in the memories of the living that anything is left of large portions of the town.

FROM the report of Secretary of the Treasury Windom it appears that during the month of May, 1889, the farmers of this country sent out to Europe and the rest of the world over three million and a half barrels of flour, nearly three million bushels of wheat, more than three million bushels of corn, and other breadstuffs, such as barley, cornmeal, oats, rye, etc., the whole amount exported being valued at $9,762,861. The total quantity of breadstuffs sent away from the United States in the 11 months ending May 31, 1889, is valued at $111,045,697. The farmer sells this in markets where he meets the competition with breadstuffs raised in India, in Russia, in Algeria, in Australia and in South America. This makes the cheapest market in the world. He buys his supplies in the highest market in the world, where he has to pay from 35 to 55 per cent. duty on cotton goods, as high as 60 per cent. on earthenware, 20 to 30 per cent. on hats, 45 per cent. on the woolen clothing he wears, and 20 to 30 per cent. on his boots and shoes. The farmer will learn one of these days.

PROHIBITION has been defeated in Pennsylvania, says the Pittsburg Post, by a majority varying from 150,000 to 172,000. The Post, when the amendment was passed as a political trick by the Legislature of 1887, predicted that the majority against it would be in the neighborhood of 100,000. It was far below the mark. It is also a fact that almost the sum total of the majority against the amendment comes from the Republican strongholds of Philadelphia and Lancaster and Allegheny counties, which are the pulses, as it were, of the bosses who dominate the Republican party of the State; the tricksters who carried the amendment through the Legislature as a bit of political cheatery practiced on the Prohibitionists, and then decreed its defeat in accord with another bargain made with the liquor interest.

But this aside, and it is a fact which will have considerable influence on the future politics of the State, the people of Pennsylvania are to be congratulated on the result. It is not a triumph of the liquor interest or of the saloon power, but of the common sense of the people, marking and emphasizing their opposition to impracticable theories, to arbitrary interferences with the personal rights of the people, and to the confiscation of property rights guaranteed by the Constitution and laws. Further than this, it is a declaration for the judicious regulation of the liquor traffic, and that it shall bear its proper, and even an exceptional, share of the public burthens. It does not mean free and untaxed whisky. Prohibition in this State did. In brief, the result condemns Prohibition as a moral, political or social issue, and maintains the right and expediency of moderate license taxation and judicious regulation.

The overwhelming vote against the amendment represents the best judgment of the industrial, the business and the professional class of the population of Pennsylvania. It was an intelligent vote. The counties where majorities against the amendments are strongest are the counties most noted for their progress, their enterprise and business activity, as well as their lead in the kindly and benevolent movements of the day. Whatever of intimidation appeared in the canvass was attempted by the Prohibitionists in arrogating to themselves a superior virtue and better judgment, not warranted by the facts. Pennsylvania by the result vindicates her conservatism, her sense of individual rights and liberty, and her regard for the rights of property. It will have a wide-reaching effect in reforming the illiberal laws of the States that have drifted far away from the principles of American liberty and the inherent and inalienable rights of citizenship. They have been held up to us as models. The model has been rejected, and Pennsylvania leads the way in the reassertion and vindication of the great American principle of self-government in its personal as well as its political sense.

THE election in this State on Tuesday puts Pennsylvania against Prohibition by a majority that will not be far from 200,000. By their vote the people of Pennsylvania, have decided to rely on their own virtue instead of being controlled by a statutory provision in the Constitution. Cambria county, gives a majority of 1,432 against the prohibitory amendment and had it not been for the calamity that befel her people in Johnstown, the majority would have reached 2,000. The inhabitants of Cambria county are a temperate people, temperate in their opioions and habits and want no legislation forced on them by the intemperate and misguided zealots, who would have the morals of the people controlled by sumptuary laws.

GENERAL HASTINGS, who has charge in Johnstown announced on Monday last that he has all the men employed that he can furnish work to for the present and says that no more need apply. He cannot state definitely the number employed, but believes the number to be 5,500. The work goes on with the same sickening details, finding bodies, daily but so badly decomposed that with few exceptions they are irrecognizable and are consigned to the cemeteries as unknown.

A SUCCESSOR to Ajutant General R. C. Drum, recently retired, has been appointed in the person of Col. J. C. Kelton. The latter had been Gen. Drum's assistant for several years past.

The New Spoils Tactics Meaner Than the Old.

Civil Service Reform is uttering some very distinct notes in the far West. The summary removal of William C. Jones, United States Marshal in Kansas, has provoked indignant comment even from a portion of the Republican journals of that State. They say that had President Harrison removed Jones because he was Democrat, and because his place was wanted for a Republican, there would have been no serious complaint. But he was dismissed upon charges of infidelity in office, without giving him the slighest opportunity to defend his reputation from assault. As ex Marshal Jones is a prominent veteran in Kansas his old comrades protest, not against his removal, but against the indecent manner in which it was made.

This is but one of the case- which show the meanness to which the Spoils System, in its newest phase, is compelled to resort. The Supreme judge of New Mexico was asked to resign on the pretense that his method of dispensing justice was not such as it should be. When he made inquiry as to the nature of the charges against him he was told by the Attorney General that his judicial course was not in harmony with the "policy" of the Administration. Mrs. Clay, the Postmistress of Huntsville, Ala., was requested to resign on the groundthat she had neglected her duties, and when she asked for the charges she received notice of the appointment of her successor. Railway Mail Superintendent Bell discharged about 1,500 postal clerks in a few weeks, and he meanly undertook to put a reproach upon nearly all of them by notifying a few only that they were removed solely for party reasons.

Formerly the dispensers of Government spoils and patriotism did not deem it necessary to resort to any subterfuge or artifice in removing their political opponents from office. When they removed capable and trustworthy officials they put the act on party grounds, and bade their political opponents make the most of it. They did not deign to trump up charges against an official in order to make a pretext for removing him. They were too manly for that. But now, under the latest ministers of the Spoils System, partisan meanness is superadded to its truculency. The office is taken away, and with it the reputation of the incumbent. It is not enough to deprive him of his present living, but by throwing suspicion upon him he must be prevented from earning a livelihood in the future. Thus the Government of a great and magnanimous nation is made a conduit of official slander and calumny.

The Spoils System as hitherto administered is infinitely preferable to this mixture of hypocrisy and cant of zeal for the public service. If public officials cannot be permitted to meet the charges assigned for their removal let us get back to the old Spoils System, with all its frank brutality, as soon as possible. The ax of the public executioner in taking the official life of the citizen would not at the same time take away his good name.—Phila Record.

Tanner and the Administration.

The Washington air is full of rumors with respect to Comissioner Tanner, all suggesting that for some unexplained reason the President is likely to remove him or ought to be likely to do so.

Now why? What has Tanner done or left undone that his place should be deemed insecure? He has made reckless rulings with respect to pensions which threaten to sweep away the whole surplus revenue in one grand distribution of money; but is in exact accord with the policy of his party as laid down in the Chicago platform, and Tanner is surely not responsible for the party policy.

He has appointed his own daughter to a place in the public service, but for that he has the highest authority of example. Has not Mr. Harrison appointed to office most of his own relatives and cronies, and the relatives of his wife and his son's wife and his daughter's husband? Further than that, Mr. Harrison has recognized the hereditary principle by appointing Fred Grant to a foreign mission and Robert Lincoln to a foreign mission and young Blaine to a place in the State Department, all simply because of their relationship to their several fathers. Tanner has simply adopted the manners and habits of the Administration which created him.

Finally, under Tanner's control the Pension Office rules have been perverted in order to make what the vulgar call "a good thing" for the pension attorney who most actively worked to get Tanner appointed. But here again precedent and high example are on his side. Has not Mr. Harrison rewarded Wanamaker and Whitelaw Reid and Erhardt and all the rest of the men who helped him to get his place? What other business, indeed, has engaged his attention during the last three months?

All this talk about Tanner's removal is Democratic fol-de-rol. The man is an ideal officer—as ideals go under the existing regime.—N. Y. World.

THE proverbial generosity of the far-away people of the Pacific coast received another illustration when the news of the Johnstown calamity reached them. Public meetings were held and money was liberally subscribed. While collections were in progress at Seattle, Washington Territory, and several thousand dollars had been cheerfully subscribed as a nucleus for the Territory's offering, the fire king came along and swept $15,000,000 of business property away. The news was telegraphed all over the coast, and for a moment people were dazed at the second calamity. But only for a moment. The next, the people were subscribing money, not only for Seattle, but also for Johnstown. The collections were made jointly, and some who had subscribed before made second offerings. A remarkable scene occurred at Seattle itself after the fire, when the citizens met to do something about rebuilding. It was announced that in one of the bank safes, still red hot in the debris, were the collections for the Johnstown sufferers. In view of the fact that "charity begins at home," it was hinted that the fund had better be diverted to the home sufferers. The propisition was indignantly voted down and the citizens proceeded to subscribe liberally for its own sufferers besides increasing the Johnstown fund. The citizens of Tacoma, Seattle's rival for supremacy, came nobly to the rescue with a fund of $25,000 cash and supplies sufficient to feed 2,000 people for thirty days, with as much more in reserve if necessary. Truly, the American people are a great institution, on which no flies rest even momentarily.

Merit Wins.

We desire to say to our citizens, that for years we have been selling Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, Dr. King's New Life Pills Bucklen's Arnica Salve and Electric Bitters, and have never handled remedies that sell as well, or that have given such universal satisfaction. We do not hesitate to guarantee them every time, and we stand ready to refund the purchase price, if satisfactory results do not follow their use. These remedies have won their great popularity purely on their merits. For sale at the drug store of E. James, Ebensburg, and W. W. McAteer, Loretto.

PRESIDENT HARRISON expects to leave Washington to-morrow for Cape May, where he will spend Sunday with his family at Postmaster General Wanamaker's cottage. He will go by rail, so as to get as much time at the seashore as possible.

Secret Political Societies in General and the Clan-na-Gael in Particular.

The Know-Nothing party was the only formidable political society that ever rose and fell in this free country. That secret, oath-bound organization owed its brief career of prosperity and its partial successes to the fact that it was able to seize upon a pre-existing passion, in a time of political reaction, when the great parties were in a state of torpor. But had the aims of the Know Nothing party been patriotic and praiseworthy, its secrecy, its mummeries, its oaths, and its subjection of the will of the individual citizen to the decrees of a hidden junto, operating in the dark, would have been its sufficient condemnation. As long as this secret party lasted it had great attractions for men who were able to acquire a pre-eminence in its councils which neither their talents nor their worth could gain for them elsewhere, and who used the footing acquired there to advance themselves in other fields where honors and emoluments of office were to be harvested. But assoon as daylight flashed upon the Know-Nothing organization, exposing its character and mischievous tendencies, it disappeared like the mists before the morning sun.

Singularly enough, men who are ready to condemn Know-Nothingism, with its hidden mummeries and oathes, have not hesitated to attach themselves to other oath-bound political organizations of a much darker and more repulsive characted. Recent revelations in regard to the so-called Clan-na-Gael Society show it to have been a nest of intrigue and conspiracy, in which desperate adventurers operated upon the weak and credulous in order to accomplish the most infamous ends.

Funds contributed by the poor and needy for the cause of Ireland have been squandered by thousands on the Chicago Stock Exchange in gambling in Wabash and other "wildcats." Some of this money has been used in hiring murderous desperadoes to sling dynamite in crowded railway stations abroad, and in employing assassians to "remove" dangerous enemies at home. It is natural that such an organization should be honeycombed with treachery, and that the Le Carons should keep the British Government fully apprised of all its secret movem nts. So complete has been the intelligence that agents sent to England to perform the "work" of the society have been arrested, with the proofs upon them, almost as soon as they landed. In the politics of this country the organization has been used for all it would bring its leaders in money and spoils.

A political organzsation so constituted is not only a curse to the cause of Ireland but a reproach to the nation that gives it hospitality. There is no doubt that many good men have been lured into the society without having any definite idea of its aims and character. Now that its true spirit and tendencies have been revealed their duty is plain.

But, even if the aims of this organization had bees as pure and patriotic as they have been desperate and criminal, there can be no excuse in this country for the existence of any secret political organization. With the best aims, such organizations inevitably degenerate into centres of intrigue and conspiracy. In a free government like ours the only omnipotent conspirator is public opinion; and its sessions are always open. —Phila Record.

Johnstown's Health is Good.

JOHNSTOWN, Pa., June 19.—Governor Beaver and the Flood Commission arrived here quite unexpectedly shortly before noon, accompanied by General Hastings, and made a tour of the devastated district on horseback, dining afterward at headquarters. The Philadelphia members of the Commission express themselves as satisfied that the press reports of the disaster were not exaggerated, and that the people of Johnstown are entitled to substantial relief from the State.

Dr. Benjamin Lee, Executive Officer of the State Board of Health, issued health bulletin No. 5 this morning, the first bulletin since the 13th instant. It reports a gradual improvement in the health of the buroughs. Coopersdale is somewhat inaccessible owing to high water in the Conemaugh, and there are some cases of stomach troubles in consequenc of poor food. There have been no cases of contagious disease at the general hospital, but one fatal case of diptheria at the Red Cross Hospital and one other case. Among the soldiery there is not a single hospital case. Measels are diminishing. Gangs are engaged in collecting the carcasses of dead animals along the different streams and burning them.

Distressing Weakness.

The Johnstown disaster was a splendid opportunity for Governor Beaver to do something to gloss over a very bad record, but it served only to show his lamentable weakness. At the time of the calamity he was, as usual, junketing around the country, just as Hartranft was when the railroad riots of 1877 occurred. While the governor of Ohio was rushing a train load of provisions and clothing and tents to Johnstown our own governor was doing nothing. No one seemed to know anything about him. It was not until his appeal was published in Tuesday's papers that the public were made aware of his return to Harrisburg. Why did he not hurry to Johnstown as fast as steam and horses could carry him, put five thousand men to work and personally superintend the recovery of bodies and the removal of the debris? The presence of the governor would have had much to do with the effectiveness of the work. But he kept away from the scene of devastation and private citizens were obliged to fill the place that he should have occupied. Try to imagine Foraker, of Ohio, or Hill of New York, making such an exhibition of weakness.

THE Cronin case, says the New York Times, as it has now been developed, has a painful interest for the administration. The kind of Irishman who manages the Clan-na-Gael is the kind that is universally known as the Blaine Irishman. One of this kind is the present American Minister to Chili. Egan was the friend and associate of Sullivan and the other leaders of the Clan-na-Gael, and was selected for a foreign mission as their representative and to satisfy their demands. It is now established that the Clan-na Gael was an association of men who practiced swindling under pretense of committing murder, and that this pretense was not wholly false, as even if they have not murdered many or any Englishmen, it is clear that they have murdered an Irishmen whose survival threatened the success of their swindling operations. Egan's nomination was accepted as "a Blaine appointment," and the Secretary of State must be especially anxious to rid himself of this odium attaching to such an appointment without seeing his way clear to do so.

NEWS AND OTHER NOTINGS.

—John Williams, a bachelor in Augusta, Me., was told that a certain widow had set her cap for him, and John was so afraid that he might be roped into marriage that he went into the barn and hanged himself.

—An explosion of gas occurred on Monday morning in the Nottingham mines, at Plymouth, near Wilkes-Barre, Pa., coal company. Three Polish mine laborers were severely burned. Their names could not be learned.

—The jawbone of a huge monster has been unearthed recently at the Wauchula, Fla., phosphate beds. It measures 18 inches in length and about 7 in width. Some of the teeth are 6 or 7 inches long and 2 or 3 inches in diameter.

—The St. Mary's Herald states that a Ridgway minister who had favored Prohibition was saved in the late flood by a beer keg that opportunity floated to him, and he thereupon decided to vote against the amendment.

—A Connecticut woman is suing her neighbor for damages for putting up fly screens. She claims that the flys which cannot get into the neighbor's house on this account will come into hers, and she will thereby have double the usual number.

—While Rev. W. F. Kramer, pastor of the Reformed church of Lebanon this State, was crossing the Reading railroad in a carriage last Friday afternoon at the head of a funeral procession, he was struck by a passenger train and instantly killed. He was 70 years of age.

—The other day Madison, Ga., was treated to something novel in the show line. A negro with a live rattlesnake was going the rounds, and for a small contribution he would take the snake from the box and handle it as though it were a toy. The snake was a genuine rattlesnake, 7 years old.

—A mouse attracted no little attention in a show window in Danbury, Conn. The little fellow ran about among the goods, and climbed up to the top of the large show window and curtains, catching flies. He has made the window his abode for several weeks, and keeps the flies away in the most approved manner.

—While fishing in Cobb creek, near Jekyl Island, Georgia, the other day, Beauregard Tomlins caught an immense sawfish. The monster got entangled in his net, and after being shot two or three times was lassoed and towed into port. The fish measured nearly 12 feet in length and weighed 250 or 300 pounds. The length of his saw was nearly 3 feet.

—John Cooper, of Milford, twelve miles north of Cincinnati O, died on Saturday night of a pistol-shot wound he had received from Thomas Frey while he was assisting the Town Marshal of Milford in arresting Frey for disturbing the peace. It was only by the most strenuous efforts of citizens that a mob was prevented from lynching Frey after he had been jailed.

—James Hiatt, of near Minerva Ky., the old man who has been robbed so frequently, and whose son disappeared from home over a year ago, died last week. In his will the old man bequeaths his estate, valued at about $50,000, to his missing son, provided the latter appears and lays claims to it within two years, otherwise the entire estate is given to an educational institution.

—Four years ago John Cline, a 16-year-old boy, was killed near Charleston, W. Va. under especially brutal circumstances. One Snodgrass was charged with the crime and fled. On Monday last Snodgrass was brought there in irons, having been captured at the head of Lewis creek, after a desperate struggle, by a constable and a posse. Snodgrass was badly injured while resisting arrest.

—At Homestead last Monday shortly after noon two Hungarians quarreled, and one of them, whose name is unknown, struck the other with a brick upon the head, inflicting injuries which are likely to prove fatal. The assailant was arrested placed in the Homestead lockup, while the wounded man, Jeu Tschaiskowalski, received medical treatment. His skull is fractured and death is probable.

—Notwithstanding the flattering reports sent out from Dakota relative to the anticipated abundant yield of small grain, advices received from a good portion of western and south Dakota state that small grain is an entire failure, more so than in any other years. The grain is all burned up. More than half the acreage was sown to wheat and oats. Corn does not yet show the effects of the drouth. Among the farming community this failure will be sorely felt.

—A richly dressed woman deliberately plunged into the rapids at Niagara Falls, on last Friday afternoon and was carried over the American falls. The body was recovered almostimmediately after in the river below and was towed to the Canada side. All the clothing below the waist excepting the shoes and stocking had been torn off. On her head was a deep gash made by the rocks. The body was identified as that of a woman who arived there in the afternoon from Buffalo.

—Charles Wittstein, aged fifty years, a well-known druggist of Cincinnati, O., committed suicide last Friday morning by shooting himself through the head at his home in that city. He had been suffering for years with a peculiar disease, concerning which no two physicians have been able to agree, but it is supposed to have been liver colic. It caused him intense suffering, and at times his shrieks as he rolled on the floor in agony could have been heard throughout the neighborhood.

—Incendiary fires have been frequentoccurrence in Ionica, Mich., of late. Early last Sunday morning a fire fiend was caught red handed in the act of setting fire to a residence. The occupants were nearly suffocated before they were aroused and were rescued with difficulty. Public feeling ran very high when it was known the fire bug was in the hands of the officers. An attempt was finally made to lynch the man, but prompt action by the police saved Michigan from another horror.

—Thursday of last week two children of Edward Bacaus, a farmer of Rosier, Missouri, a small village fifty miles south of Kansas City, on the Kansas line, went to a creek about a mile from home to fish. Upon their failing to return at night, searching parties were organized and Friday evening their bones were found near a ledge of rocks that had long been known as Wolf's Den. A band of timber wolves have used this section for years and it it is thought the children were killed and eaten by the animals. The boys were aged 10 and 12 years.

—It was just 112 years on Friday of last week since the adoption of the Stars and Stripes as the flag of the United States. The flag used as early as January, 1776, by the Continental army, had 13 alternate red and white stripes, with the united St. George and St. Andrew crosses in, into the Union. This was changed by act of Congress, June 14, 1777, by retaining the stripes and placing 13 stars in the blue field. An act of 1794 provided that there should be as many stripes as stars, but on April 4, 1818, it was determined that the flag should be as it is at present, the 13 alternate red and white horizontal stripes, representing the independent 13 original States, and provision being made that there should be as many stars in the field as there are States in the Union, one star to be added on the admission of each new State on the 4th of July succeeding the admission.

—News has just been received that Mrs. Z. F. Bogges, a resident of Boone county, W. Va., was shot in the right side, a few days ago, with a rifle. The ball entered between the fourth and fifth ribs, and was extracted from a point several inches distant. She will possibly recover. One of her boys, upon returning from hunting, handed the gun to his mother to set in the house. The floor of the building being some distance from the ground, she caught the gun by the muzzle and by some means the gun was discharged, striking her in the breast.

—John Manion, a young farmer with a wife and three children, lived four miles from Fayette, Mo. The couple separated on account of the attentions of Richard Fowler, a cousin of Manion. About noon Saturday Fowler and Manion met in Fayette and began to shoot at each other. Manion was shot through the stomach and chest and died during the afternoon. Fowler was wounded in the neck and both arms. After emptying their revolvers, both men stood up and pounded each other with their pistols. Mrs. Manion is prostrated and threatens to kill herself. All the principals are highly connected.

—One of the heaviest showers ever known in West Virginia passed over the southwestern portion of Berkely county last Sunday evening. A terrific gale that did great damage was followed by an awful tornado storm, and to cap the climax and add to the destructiveness of the elements, there was a hail storm that did great damage. Some stones fell that by measurement were larger than hen eggs and in places the stones lay three and four inches deep. Crops, trees, etc., are ruined and stock is badly bruised and in some instances killed. Several houses and barns were badly damaged by the wind. No loss of life is reported.

—John Lawes, the phenomenal fat man, of Elmira, N. Y. died at his home in that city at 3 o'clock Monday afternoon. Mr. Lawes had been enjoying usually good health, and was to have been put on exhibition at the county fair. Mr. Lawes was undoubtedly the heaviest man in America, weighing at his death 640 pounds. He was born in England and was about 40 years of age. He was a blacksmith and worked at his trade up to three years ago. Previous to that time he had weighed but a little over 200 pounds. He then began to gain rapidly in stature, forcing him to retire from the pursuit of his trade. He gained in weight at the rate of from 5 to 10 pounds per week.

—People of Harlansburg, a village nine miles from New Castle, Pa., were treated to a novel sight on Thursday of last week, when a fox which had been chained in a yard, freed himself and started on a foraging expedition. Entering a neighboring yard, reynard with little ceremony, snapped the heads from three chickens. He then ran into the Main street of the village where he espied a five-year-old child at play. In an instant he was upon the child, and before the score or more of spectators could realize the situation the little one's face, arms and legs were fearfully torn by the sharp teeth of the fox, which continued its vicious attack until killed by a bystander.

—A small-sized riot occurred on an excursion train on the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad, at Allen station, nine miles east of Wheeling W. Va., on Monday. The train was delayed for nearly three hours on account of a weak bridge at Triadelphia. All this time small fights were taking place, which finally ended in a grand free slugging match. A number of the fighters got out of the car and continued the melee on the bank of the creek. Two were thrown in, and barely escaped drowning. At least ten stone jugs of whisky were aboard the train. It is alleged that the conductor and brakeman were intoxicated. No person was seriously injured, and no arrests were made.

Give them a trial. A 5 6m.

—It may not be generally known that the Legislature at its last session passed and the Governor signed a bill prohibiting the killing of "any bird of song or any linnet, bluebird, yellow-hamer, yellow-bird, grass-bird, grosbeak bobolink, phœbabird, humming-bird, wren, robin, meadow-lark, dove, night-hawk, starling, or any other wild bird other than a game bird." Nor shall any person purchase, or have in possession or expose for sale, any such song or wild bird, or any part thereof after the same shall have been killed. The penalty for killing any of these birds is a fine not less than $10 nor more than $50, and imprisonment not less than five nor more than thirty days.

Wilmore Briefs.

WILMORE, Pa., June 18, 1889.

EDITOR FREEMAN:—The late flood is still the theme of conversation here, as many people from this place were in the midst of the catastrophe, among which was the family of Mr. Peter Brown, of 22 Maple avenue, Woodvale, consisting of Mr. B., his son Thomas A. Brown, his daughters Sadie, Emma, Gertie and Lizzie, and his grand daughter, Miss Laura McCauliff, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. McCauliff, of Somerset county, Pa., who was attending school in Kernville preparatory to entering the teacher's profession. The bodies of Mr. Brown and those of his daughters Emma and Lizzie and that of Miss McCauliff have been recovered and interred in the Catholic cemetery by Mr. McCauliff's family with all the solemnity possible on this sad occasion. The funeral of Miss McCauliff was attended by all of her school mates, who brought floral offerings for the sad occasion. Mr. Brown has four children who were not in the flood, Mr. McCauliff, above mentioned, Mrs. F. A. McCormick, of Minneapolis, Minn., Sister M. Cecelia, of the Order of Charity, Altoona, Pa., and Michael J. Brown, of Barnesville, Minn. Thomas, Sadie and Gertie Brown are also supposed to be lost, as at latest accounts, nothing had been heard from them by their friends. The sympathy of the community is with the surviving relatives, as Mr. Brown and his family were exceedingly good and generous people and were not, we trust, unprepared to meet the dread summons. Miss Emma Brown when found above the B. & O. bridge, in Stonycreek, had clasped in her arms the body of a child named Shoemaker, whom she was endeavoring to save when she met her fate. Peace to their ashes.

Another sad case among the many sad ones in Johnstown is the death of Mr. Louis Weinzirl, his wife and six children. Mr. W. formerly lived in Summerhill and was a shoemaker by trade.

John Feeney, brother of Mrs. John Schroth, of Wilmore, is reported drowned.

Jacob Bopp, whose body was found at Nineveh, was a son of Mr. John Bopp, of New Germany.

John Hess, the engineer who sounded the alarm from South Fork to Conemaugh, by running his engine down, whistling all the way, thus saving many lives, is a former Wilmore boy, and is entitled to the highest commendation. He is the real Paul Revere of the flood.

John Roehm, of Summerhill township, lost a son and two daughters in Johnstown.

Lewis Dopp was in the flood but escaped by swimming, and afterwards rescued some of his relatives.

Pat Doran was the engineer of the first section of Day Express which was lying at Conemaugh at the time of the flood, and saved himself by swimming to Prospect Hill. Pat has had several close calls but has always come out right.

Vivantius McHugh, of Conemaugh borough, had gone to the telegraph office to send a message to his mother-in-law, Mrs. P. M. Brown, of Wilmore, that his wife was very low when he was caught by the flood, but escaped to Prospect and did not get home until Sunday. The shock of the suspense almost caused the death of his wife, but she was at latest accounts recovering.

Mr. Simon Lingle, formerly of Wilmore, was injured but escaped with one son and the rest of his family perished.

Our sympathy is extended to Mrs. L. H. Linton, formerly teacher of the writer, in her sad affliction.

Next week week I will send you a true account of the condition of the reservoir before the flood.

White Township Items.

DEAR FREEMAN:—Thinking your many readers who have so generously taken chances on a cow belonging to L. A. Burgoon to aid him to purchase a team of horses would like to hear the result of the drawing. I will say the cow was rafled off on the 15th in the village of St. Augustine and Thomas Richardson, of Frugality, was the lucky man. Mr. Burgoon extends many thanks to those who have so generously assisted him in his misfortune.

The late floods did considerable damage in White township in the way of carrying off bridges, fences, logs, etc.

The crops are all looking good except the corn, and there is very poor prospects for that crop since the flood and the depredation of the cut worms.

Mr. S. J. Luther received an addition to his Holstein, Fresian, herd of cattle last week from Chester county, they are beauties and if he continues he will make a show on the cattle in his neighborhood in a few years. He has also commenced breeding and shipping the Yorkshire breed of hogs. His stock is pure bred and of high pedigree.

News being scarce I will for the want of a better name call myself

MARRIAGE LICENSES ISSUED.

The following marriage licenses were issued by the Clerk of the Orphans' Court for week ending Wednesday, June 19, 1889:

Jermiah Fisher and Mary Wills, Croyle township.

Shannon Hershberger and Clara McAteer, Johnstown.

Isaac O. Rowland and Margaret Humphreys, Johnstown.

John H. Thompson and Maggie L. Thomas, Johnstown.

Testimonial to a Faithful Priest.

The following notice of a testimonial to a worthy priest, well known in Cambria Co., where he has many friends and relatives we take from a recent number the Catholic Columbian published at Columbus, Ohio.

An unusual scene both solemn and sad was witnessed after the Vesper services in Holy Trinity Church, Somerset, O., last Sunday.

There had been throughout the day a solemn quiet and deep solemnity resting throughout the congregation. It was the last day that Rev. Father Noon, was to serve at the altar as Holy Trinity's pastor. After 20 years of faithful care and watchfulness over his devoted flock they were to separate. The shepherd going into retirement for rest, and as he expressed himself "to prepare for another world." If this good man and shepherd has not been preparing for it for the last 20 years, and is not now prepared no man has or will be. The flock remains in the fold with a new shepherd, Rev. Father Flood.

The severing of old ties of love and friendship are always hard to be borne, especially so were they in this case.

The tender relationship existing—the intimate knowledge of each other as pastor and members of the Church through so many years of close personal acquaintance, was very endearing—all his kind acts, all his noble works, all his sacrifices for the good of the Church and the welfare of his people both spiritual and temporal were passing in rapid review in their minds and clouding them with sadness. But it was the will of God that they part, and bowing humbly and sorrowfully to the Divine decree they submitted, knowing that "He ordereth all things well." They will always retain his fervent piety and zeal and all his good work in their hearts and with grateful remembrance.

He has left an enduring monument in the beautiful and substantial building known as St. Mary's Novitiate. From the first of his assignment to Holy Trinity Church, he resolved to erect a Convent building upon the site of the destroyed old St. Mary's, of happy memory. It was the study of his days and nights and the object of his prayers. How well he succeeded, through what trials and tribulations he passed are well known, and it is also known that he saved thousands of dollars in its construction by the labor of his own hands. We can never look at that work of Father Noon's without seeing him with the eyes of our mind, as we have seen him a thousand times with our natural eyes, busy in carrying out the earnest desire of his soul. God bless him in his retirement at dear old St. Joseph's! There may he find the rest his body so much needs from its weary labors, and that peace and comfort his soul craves!

But to return to the scene we alluded to. Some two weeks before, it was learned that Father Noon was about to retire, at his special request, to St. Joseph's. Some of the leading members of the congregation took the matter in hand, organized in behalf of the congregation, and appointed the following committees:

On Finance, John Yoerger, J. D. McKinney, Henry Walker, John Gallin, Joseph A. Flautt, and E. Kempf.

On Testimonial Address, Hon. W. E. Finck, J. J. Magruder, Wm. Snider, Thomas Scanlan, Ed. Kuhns, and L. V. Kullman.

The committee on finance presented Father Noon with a new outfit of clothing and a handsome purse of money. They besides paid off all the indebtedness of the church, so that he could leave his charge free from encumbrance.

The committee on testimonial presented the following address at the hands of their distinguished chairman, Hon. W. E. Finck:

TESTIMONIAL.

Very Rev. and Dear Father Noon:—At a meeting of a number of the members of Holy Trinity Church congregation lately held, the following was unanimously adopted, and the undersigned committee was requested, on behalf of the congregation, to present the same to you, as an expression of their sentiments and feeling.

When we heard a few weeks ago that you had asked permission from the Very Rev. Provincial to be released of your charge of Holy Trinity Congregation and to be retired to St. Joseph's Convent, our hearts were filled with sorrow, but as the time draws near for the separation we feel how painful it is to part from one who has for more than twenty years been our beloved and devoted pastor, and we cannot refrain from tendering you this public expression of our deepfelt attachment, sincere regard, and the high esteem we entertain and will always cherish for you and to return you our most grateful thanks for your untiring zeal and labor for our spiritual and temporal welfare.

The rebuilding of St. Mary's Academy will always stand as a monument to your industry, self sacrifice, and devotion to the advancement of the educational interests of our people. Besides this the improvements added by you to Holy Trinity Church, and to the pastorial residence, evinced the zeal and interest which continually animated you in our behalf.

But above and beyond all this you have been, during these many years, to us an example of every virtue and your life with us has been a continual sermon. You have led us by your kindness, meekness, and sweet forbearance along the path of duty, and we have always found you not only the devoted Pastor, but an indulgent and affectionate father.

Who among us has been in affliction and sorrow, that you have not soothed and comforted by your tender sympathy and paternal kindness, and which one of us has had cause to rejoice, and be glad, and you have not also rejoiced with us, so that your life among us has been characterized by that of the good Shepherd and by a zeal that knew no interruption for our spiritual welfare.

We now unite in tendering you our affectionate and heartfelt thanks, and to beg of you, that in your retirement at dear old St. Joseph's you will not forget us in your prayers, that we may all have the grace to lead Christian lives, and finally be united in the happiness of heaven."

As Mr. Finck finished the reading of the testimonial the Rev. Father and all present were much affected. On the Rev. Father's part too much so, to do much speaking. Father Noon's thanks were returned in a few feeling words that went to the hearts of his hearers, assuring them he should never forget his children who have always been so kind to him.

The committee before they returned to their respective homes, called upon the newly appointed Pastor, Rev. Father Flood, and paid their respects.

The Public Will Appreciate It.

The public are indebted to the Royal Baking Powder Company not more for having perfected and prepared a leavening agent that is pure and wholesome beyond a question than for its exposures, so boldly made, of the numerous impure, adulterated and injurious articles that are sold under the name of baking powders, bread preparations, etc., throughout the country. In making these exposures the company has, of course, made itself the target for all of counter attacks, but the animus of these attacks has been perfectly understood by the general public, and by their very virulence have served to more prominently call attention to the good work of the "Royal" Company.

Ordinary adulterations such as are found in coffee, spices, etc., although they are swindles in a commercial sense, are often tolerated because they do not particularly affect the health of the consumer. But when an article like baking powder, that is relied upon for the healthful preparation of almost every meal, is so made as to carry highly injurious if not rankly poisonous elements into our daily food, it is the duty of the public authorities to take cognizance of it.

In this fight for pure food made by the "Royal" Company, it is to be noticed that the most trustworthy scientific authorities are emphatically upon its side. In all the contests of this company with the alum and other impure baking bowders the result has proved that every statement made by the Royal Baking Powder Company, both as to the purity of its own and the adulteration of other baking powders of the market, was fully authorized by the most competent chemical and medical authorities of the country.

In this contest two facts have been pretty conclusively settled in the minds of the public—the first that the Royal Company has found the means, and uses them, to make a chemically pure article of food; and the other that the market is full of poisonous, alum and other adulterated baking powders which, no matter how strongly endorsed by "commercial" chemists, are to be studiously avoided.

A pure baking powder is one of the chief aids to the cook in preparing perfect and wholesome food. The recent controversy in the press has left it no longer a question with those who desire purity and wholesomeness of food what baking powder they shall use.

To Atlantic City via Pennsylvania Railroad.

The outlook for the summer season at Atlantic City was never so promising as it is at present, and the prosperous City by the Sea was never so good a condition for entertaining and amusing its summer guests. Entertainment in the sense of affording food and shelter is all that is required of the Atlantic City people. Nature furnishes the rest, and she lays sea and sand, sky and wind under tribute to aid in accomplishing her purpose. The great Seaside City of summer pleasure, resourceful as it is in all that is attractive and beneficial on sea and land, could never attain to its high standard of popularity if Nature's ally, the railroad, did not lend its efficient aid in rendering access so easy that the average traveler counts the trip as nothing.

The facilities afforded by the Pennsylvania Railroad's seashore branches will be greatly improved for the coming season. They have always been maintained on a scale of liberality unapproached by those enjoyed by any other wateringplace, but a progressive spirit will, this summer, be manifested in many and striking improvements. The summer schedule will go into effect on June 29th, and it will present a service of trains superior in number, speed, and equipment to that of any previous year. The roadway of both the West Jersey and Camden and Atlantic roads have been reballasted and relaid in many portions in anticipation of an improved, accelerated, and increased service, so that the new schedule will find both of the Pennsylvania's Atlantic City lines in prime physical condition. A large number of express trains are promised, and the very quick time of transit heretofore made between the Delaware and the ocean will be materially reduced.

An innovacation, which hard-working business men will appreciate and the residents of suburban town and neighboring cities will find most convenient, is a late evening train from Philadelphia. It is proposed that this train shall leave Philadelphia about 6:30 P. M., after all the afternoon connections are in and all business is over, and arrive in Atlantic City for late supper. It will undoubtedly prove a popular movement, and will oftentimes save much hurry and annoyance. Another new feature will be a late train up, leaving Atlantic City at 10:30 P. M. for Philadelphia, enabling visitors to spend the evening with friends and return the same night. Other fast trains will run at convenient hours of the day in both directions, so that every one may find a leaving and arriving hour to his taste.

Two new trains of considerable importance have been added to the schedule within the past week—one an early morning train, designed to deliver the newspapers in Atlantic City before breakfast, and the other an early train up for the accommodation of those who would be in Philadelphia before nine o'clock.

The equipment of the summer trains will be greatly improved by the use of new coaches and by the substitution of new Altoona built Parlor Cars, such as are run between New York and Washington, for the old Woodruff Parlor Cars that the march of progress has left behind.

With these superior facilities, and the advantages offered by a centrally located station easily accessible from all portions of the city, and in direct connection with Broad Street Station, travel to Atlantic City by the Pennsylvania Railroad holds out to its patrons to the strongest inducements of promptness, readiness, and comfort.

Whiskey Kills.

How often are we yet to be told that whiskey kills? Arsenic kill; opium kills, and so do hundreds of other good remedies kill if abused instead of used. But ask the question, "Will whiskey cure?" "Yes!" is the positive reply of the most eminent physicians of all the land. Disease steals into your system like a sneak thief into your house, and often by neglecting a bad cold, we end our days in lingering, and wishing for health—when, indeed, one bottle of Pure Whiskey or Brandy would have cured the cold. Such goods may be scarce, but they can be found at Max Klein's, 82 Federal street, Allegheny. His "Silver Age" is the only whisky endorsed by the doctors. You can get the pure Guckenheimer, Finch or Gibson Rye at $1.00 per quart or six quarts for $5.00 Send for price list.

REAL ESTATE FOR SALE

JOHNSTOWN'S NEW SUBURB,

MOXHAM

ALTHOUGH situated nearly two miles from the heart of town, it is connected with the same by the

Rapid Transit Railroad,

On which trains run every thirty minutes, and after July 1st, will run every fifteen minutes. The fare is the same as on the street cars, five cents; time eight minutes. This makes Moxham equal to a walk of only four squares from the post-office: in addition to which, the new runs through the heart of the property and forms the main thoroughfare, making a short level drive into Johnstown over a good roadway and heavy steel bridges.

The large number of houses already erected at Moxham have justified every modern improvement, among which may be mentioned

A Good Sewer System.

The Waring Sewer System has been adopted, with Flush tanks. Over half a mile of sewer is already laid.

A Good Domestic Water System

Has also been provided. The rates are 25 per cent. less than Johnstown rates.

NATURAL GAS

Rates are the same as in Johnstown. This, together with the

WELSBACH INCANDESCETT GAS LIGHT,

For home use, gives Moxham every modern facility. The well-known

Von Lunen Grove,

The summer evening resort of Johnstown, is situated in the very heart of the property.

On one part of the property set by for the purpose, there are a large Steel Plant, a Foundry, and several other factories, employing together from 700 to 800 men, and several more likely to soon be located there.

Over sixty tasty houses already built and this number will be doubled this year.

The lots are 40 by 120 feet. The streets laid out for a width of sixty feet, including sidewalks.

Wilmore Briefs.

WILMORE, Pa., June 18, 1889.

EDITOR FREEMAN:—The late flood is still the theme of conversation here, as many people from this place were in the midst of the catastrophe, among which was the family of Mr. Peter Brown, of 22 Maple avenue, Woodvale, consisting of Mr. B., his son Thomas A. Brown, his daughters Sadie, Emma, Gertie and Lizzie, and his grand daughter, Miss Laura McCauliff, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. McCauliff, of Somerset county, Pa., who was attending school in Kernville preparatory to entering the teacher's profession. The bodies of Mr. Brown and those of his daughters Emma and Lizzie and that of Miss McCauliff have been recovered and interred in the Catholic cemetery by Mr. McCauliff's family with all the solemnity possible on this sad occasion. The funeral of Miss McCauliff was attended by all of her school mates, who brought floral offerings for the sad occasion. Mr. Brown has four children who were not in the flood, Mr. McCauliff, above mentioned, Mrs. F. A. McCormick, of Minneapolis, Minn., Sister M. Cecelia, of the Order of Charity, Altoona, Pa., and Michael J. Brown, of Barnesville, Minn. Thomas, Sadie and Gertie Brown are also supposed to be lost, as at latest accounts, nothing had been heard from them by their friends. The sympathy of the community is with the surviving relatives, as Mr. Brown and his family were exceedingly good and generous people and were not, we trust, unprepared to meet the dread summons. Miss Emma Brown when found above the B. & O. bridge, in Stonycreek, had clasped in her arms the body of a child named Shoemaker, whom she was endeavoring to save when she met her fate. Peace to their ashes.

Another sad case among the many sad ones in Johnstown is the death of Mr. Louis Weinzirl, his wife and six children. Mr. W. formerly lived in Summerhill and was a shoemaker by trade.

John Feeney, brother of Mrs. John Schroth, of Wilmore, is reported drowned.

Jacob Bopp, whose body was found at Nineveh, was a son of Mr. John Bopp, of New Germany.

John Hess, the engineer who sounded the alarm from South Fork to Conemaugh, by running his engine down, whistling all the way, thus saving many lives, is a former Wilmore boy, and is entitled to the highest commendation. He is the real Paul Revere of the flood.

John Roehm, of Summerhill township, lost a son and two daughters in Johnstown.

Lewis Dopp was in the flood but escaped by swimming, and afterwards rescued some of his relatives.

Pat Doran was the engineer of the first section of Day Express which was lying at Conemaugh at the time of the flood, and saved himself by swimming to Prospect Hill. Pat has had several close calls but has always come out right.

Vivantius McHugh, of Conemaugh borough, had gone to the telegraph office to send a message to his mother-in-law, Mrs. P. M. Brown, of Wilmore, that his wife was very low when he was caught by the flood, but escaped to Prospect and did not get home until Sunday. The shock of the suspense almost caused the death of his wife, but she was at latest accounts recovering.

Mr. Simon Lingle, formerly of Wilmore, was injured but escaped with one son and the rest of his family perished.

Our sympathy is extended to Mrs. L. H. Linton, formerly teacher of the writer, in her sad affliction.

Next week week I will send you a true account of the condition of the reservoir before the flood. J. M.

White Township Items.

DEAR FREEMAN:—Thinking your many readers who have so generously taken chances on a cow belonging to L. A. Burgoon to aid him to purchase a team of horses would like to hear the result of the drawing. I will say the cow was rafled off on the 15th in the village of St. Augustine and Thomas Richardson, of Frugality, was the lucky man. Mr. Burgoon extends many thanks to those who have so generously assisted him in his misfortune.

The late floods did considerable damage in White township in the way of carrying off bridges, fences, logs, etc.

The crops are all looking good except the corn, and there is very poor prospects for that crop since the flood and the depredation of the cut worms.

Mr. S. J. Luther received an addition to his Holstein. Fresian, herd of cattle last week from Chester county, they are beauties and if he continues he will make a show on the cattle in his neighborhood in a few years. He has also commenced breeding and shipping the Yorkshire breed of hogs. His stock is pure bred and of high pedigree.

Testimonial to a Faithful Priest.

The following notice of a testimonial to a worthy priest, well known in Cambria Co., where he has many friends and relatives we take from a recent number the Catholic Columbian published at Columbus, Ohio.

An unusual scene both solemn and sad was witnessed after the Vesper services in Holy Trinity Church, Somerset, O., last Sunday.

There had been throughout the day a solemn quiet and deep solemnity resting throughout the congregation It was the last day that Rev. Father Noon, was to serve at the altar as Holy Trinity's pastor. After 20 years of faithful care and watchfulness over his devoted flock they were to separate. The shepherd going into retirement for rest, and as he expressed himself "to prepare for another world." If this good man and shepherd has not been preparing for it for the last 20 years, and is not now prepared no man has or will be. The flock remains in the fold with a new shepherd, Rev. Father Flood.

The severing of old ties of love and friendship are always hard to be borne, especially so were they in this case.

The tender relationship existing—the intimate knowledge of each other as pastor and members of the Church through so many years of close personal acquaintance, was very endearing—all his kind acts, all his noble works, all his sacrifices for the good of the Church and the welfare of his people both spiritual and temporal were passing in rapid review in their minds and clouding them with sadness. But it was the will of God that they part, and bowing humbly and sorrowfully to the Divine decree they submitted, knowing that "He ordereth all things well." They will always retain his fervent piety and zeal and all his good work in their hearts and with grateful remembrance.

He has left an enduring monument in the beautiful and substantial building known as St. Mary's Novitiate. From the first of his assignment to Holy Trinity Church, he resolved to erect a Convent building upon the site of the destroyed old St. Mary's, of happy memory. It was the study of his days and nights and the object of his prayers. How well he succeeded, through what trials and tribulations he passed are well known, and it is also known that he saved thousands of dollars in its construction by the labor of his own hands. We can never look at that work of Father Noon's without seeing him with the eyes of our mind, as we have seen him a thousand times with our natural eyes, busy in carrying out the earnest desire of his soul. God bless him in his retirement at dear old St. Joseph's! There may he find the rest his body so much needs from its weary labors, and that peace and comfort his soul craves!

But to return to the scene we alluded to. Some two weeks before, it was learned that Father Noon was about to retire, at his special request, to St. Joseph's. Some of the leading members of the congregation took the matter in hand, organized in behalf of the congregation, ahd appointed the following committees:

On Finance, John Yoerger, J. D. McKinney, Henry Walker, John Gallin, Joseph A. Flautt, and E. Kempf.

On Testimonial Address, Hon. W. E. Finck, J. J. Magruder, Wm. Snider, Thomas Scanlan, Ed. Kuhns, and L. V. Knilman.

The committee on finance presented Father Noon with a new outfit of clothing and a handsome purse of money. They besides paid off all the indebtedness of the church, so that he could leave his charge free from encumbrance.

The committee on testimonial presented the following address at the hands of their distinguished chairman, Hon. W. E. Finck:

TESTIMONIAL.

Very Rev. and Dear Father Noon:—At a meeting of a number of the members of Holy Trinity Church congregation lately held, the following was unanimously adopted, and the undersigned committee was requested, on behalf of the congregation, to present the same to you, as an expression of their sentiments and feeling.

When we heard a few weeks ago that you had asked permission from the Very Rev. Provincial to be released of your charge of Holy Trinity Congregation and to be retired to St. Joseph's Convent, our hearts were filled with sorrow, but as the time draws near for the separation we feel how painful it is to part from one who has for more than twenty years been our beloved and devoted pastor, and we cannot refrain from tendering you this public expression of our deepfelt attachment, sincere regard, and the high esteem we entertain and will always cherish for you and to return you our most grateful thanks for your untiring zeal and labor for our spiritual and temporal welfare.

The rebuilding of St. Mary's Academy will always stand as a monument to your industry, self sacrifice, and devotion to the advancement of the educational interests of our people. Besides this the improvements added by you to Holy Trinity Church, and to the pastorial residence, evinced the zeal and interest which continually animated you in our behalf.

But above and beyond all this you have been, during these many years, to us an example of every virtue and your life with us has been a continual sermon. You have led us by your kindness, meekness, and sweet forbearance along the path of duty, and we have always found you, not only the devoted Pastor, but an indulgent and affectionate father.

Who among us has been in affliction and sorrow, that you have not soothed and comforted by your tender sympathy and paternal kindness, and which one of us has had cause to rejoice, and be glad, and you have not also rejoiced with us, so that your life among us has been characterized by that of the good Shepherd and by a zeal that knew no interruption for our spiritual welfare.

We now unite in tendering you our affectionate and heartfelt thanks, and to beg of you, that in your retirement at dear old St. Joseph's you will not forget us in your prayers, that we may all have the grace to lead Christian lives, and finally be united in the happiness of heaven."

As Mr. Finck finished the reading of the testimonial the Rev. Father and all present were much affected. On the Rev. Father's part too much so, to do much speaking. Father Noon's thanks were returned in a few feeling words that went to the hearts of his hearers, assuring them he should never forget his children who have always been so kind to him.

The committee before they returned to their respective homes, called upon the newly appointed Pastor, Rev. Father Flood, and paid their respects.

The Public Will Appreciate It.

The public are indebted to the Royal Baking Powder Company not more for having perfected and prepared a leavening agent that is pure and wholesome beyond a question than for its exposures, so boldly made, of the numerous impure, adulterated and injurious articles that are sold under the name of baking powders, bread preparations, etc., throughout the country. In making these exposures the company has, of course, made itself the target for all of counter attacks, but the animus of these attacks has been perfectly understood by the general public, and by their very virulence have served to more prominently call attention to the good work of the "Royal" Company.

Ordinary adulterations such as are found in coffee, spices, etc., although they are swindles in a commercial sense, are often tolerated because they do not particularly affect the health of the consumer. But when an article like baking powder, that is relied upon for the healthful preparation of almost every meal, is so made as to carry highly injurious if not rankly poisonous elements into our daily food, it is the duty of the public authorities to take cognizance of it.

In this fight for pure food made by the "Royal" Company, it is to be noticed that the most trustworthy scientific authorities are emphatically upon its side. In all the contests of this company with the alum and other impure baking bowders the result has proved that every statement made by the Royal Baking Powder Company, both as to the purity of its own and the adulteration of other baking powders of the market, was fully authorized by the most competent chemical and medical authorities of the country.

In this contest two facts have been pretty conclusively settled in the minds of the public—the first that the Royal Company has found the means, and uses them, to make a chemically pure article of food; and the other that the market is full of poisonous, alum and other adulterated baking powders which, no matter how strongly endorsed by "commercial" chemists, are to be studiously avoided.

A pure baking powder is one of the chief aids to the cook in preparing perfect and wholesome food. The recent controversy in the press has left it no longer a question with those who desire perity and wholesomeness of food what baking powder they shall use.

To Atlantic City via Pennsylvania Railroad.

The outlook for the summer season at Atlantic City was never so promising as it is at present, and the prosperous City by the Sea was never so good a condition for entertaining and amusing its summer guests. Entertainment in the sense of affording food and shelter is all that is required of the Atlantic City people, Nature furnishes the rest, and she lays sea and sand, sky and wind under tribute to aid in accomplishing her purpose. The great Seaside City of summer pleasure, resourceful as it is in all that is attractive and beneficial on sea and land, could never attain to its high standard of popularity if Nature's ally, the railroad, did not lend its efficient aid in rendering access so easy that the average traveler counts the trip as nothing.

The facilities afforded by the Pennsylvania Railroad's seashore branches will be greatly improved for the coming season. They have always been maintained on a scale of liberality unapproached by those enjoyed by any other wateringplace, but a progressive spirit will, this summer, be manifested in many and striking improvements. The summer schedule will go into effect on June 29th, and it will present a service of trains superior in number, speed, and equipment to that of any previous year. The roadway of both the West Jersey and Camden and Atlantic roads have been reballasted and relaid in many portions in anticipation of an improved, accelerated, and increased service, so that the new schedule will find both of the Pennsylvania's Atlantic City lines in prime physical condition. A large number of express trains are promised, and the very quick time of transit heretofore made between the Delaware and the ocean will be materially reduced.

An innovacation, which hard-working business men will appreciate and the residents of suburban town and neighbering cities will find most convenient, is a late evening train from Philadelphia. It is proposed that this train shall leave Philadelphia about 6:30 P. M., after all the afternoon connections are in and all business is over, and arrive in Atlantic City for late supper. It will undoubtedly prove a popular movement, and will oftentimes save much hurry and annoyance. Another new feature will be a late train up, leaving Atlantic City at 10:30 P. M. for Philadelphia, enabling visitors to spend the evening with friends and return the same night. Other fast trains will run at convenient hours of the day in both directions, so that every one may find a leaving and arriving hour to his taste.

Two new trains of considerable importance have been added to the schedule within the past week—one an early morning train, designed to deliver the newspapers in Atlantic City before breakfast, and the other an early train up for the accommodation of those who would be in Philadelphia before nine o'clock.

The equipment of the summer trains will be greatly improved by the use of new coaches and by the substitution of new Altoona built Parlor Cars, such as are run between New York and Washington, for the old Woodruff Parlor Cars that the march of progress has left behind.

With these superior facilities, and the advantages offered by a centrally located station easily accessible from all portions of the city, and in direct connection with Broad Street Station, travel to Atlantic City by the Pennsylvania Railroad holds out to its patrons to the strongest inducements of promptness, readiness, and comfort.

Whiskey Kills.

How often are we yet to be told that whiskey kills? Arsenic kill; opium kills, and so do hundreds of other good remedies kill if abused instead of used. But ask the question, "Will whiskey cure?" "Yes!" is the positive reply of the most eminent physicians of all the land. Disease steals into your system like a sneak thief into your house, and often by neglecting a bad cold, we end our days in lingering, and wishing for health—when, indeed, one bottle of Pure Whiskey or Brandy would have cured the cold. Such goods may be scarce, but they can be found at Max Kleins, 82 Federal street, Allegheny. His "Silver Age" is the only whisky endorsed by the doctors. You can get the pure Guckenheimer, Finch or Gibson Rye at $1.00 per quart or six quarts for $5.00 Send for price list.

The Tail End of Old 1888
AND
The Beginning of 1889

will be made memorable by WOOLF, SON & THOMAS for low prices. Our Overcoat Department is teeming with Bargains. Words and figures cannot possibly convey a correct idea of the manner in which we have cut the prices of all our stock of Men's Boys' and Children's Overcoats and heavy suits. The sacrafice we make in unloading this stock is without parallel. Not a price will we quote, but of this fact you may rest assured: that from our finest Dress Suit or Overcoat for a young gentleman down to the strong every-day Suit for a school-boy, we will give more and better for the price we ask than we have ever given before. This Reduction Sale is in downright earnest. We mean business. The Overcoats and heavy suits must be sold. The weather was against us in the early part of the season, and now if you have a little ready money it will prove a saving of several dollars to you in your purchases from us.

The Greatest Reductions have been in the Prices of

HOLIDAY GOODS:

Fur Caps, 43 72, 89 cents; former prices, 75c., $1, $1, $1.25.
Plush Neckwear, 47, 75, 87 cents; former prices, 75c., $1, $1.25.
Silk Mufflers, 37, 68, 75 cents; former prices, 75c., $1, $1.10.
Fur top Gloves 75 cts., $1, $1.25; former prices $1, $1.25, $1.50.
Boys' Plush Caps, 17, 28, 42 cents; former prices, 25, 40, 60 cts.

GIVEN AWAY! GIVEN AWAY!

From now until New Year's Day we shall continue to present each of our many customers (purchasing goods to the amount of $3 or more) with one of those Handsome Plush Photograph Albums which have delighted thousands of our lady friends during Christmas week.

REMEMBER, GREATEST BARGAINS EVER OFFERED.

REAL ESTATE FOR SALE

JOHNSTOWN'S NEW SUBURB,

MOXHAM

ALTHOUGH situated nearly two miles from the heart of town, it is connected with the same by the

Rapid Transit Railroad,

On which trains run every thirty minutes, and after July 1st, will run every fifteen minutes. The fare is the same as on the street cars, five cents; time eight minutes. This makes Moxham equal to a walk of only four squares from the post-office; in addition to which, the new runs through the heart of the property and forms the main thoroughfare, making a short level drive into Johnstown over a good roadway and heavy steel bridges.

The large number of houses already erected at Moxham have justified every modern improvement, among which may be mentioned

A Good Sewer System.

The Waring Sewer System has been adopted, with Flush tanks. Over half a mile of sewer is already laid.

A Good Domestic Water System

Has also been provided. The rates are 25 per cent. less than Johnstown rates.

NATURAL GAS

Rates are the same as in Johnstown. This, together with the

WELSBACH INCANDESCETT GAS LIGHT,

For home use, gives Moxham every modern facility. The well-known

Von Lunen Grove,

The summer evening resort of Johnstown, is situated in the very heart of the prroperty.

On one part of the property set by for the purpose, there are a large Steel Plant, a Foundry, and several other factories, employing together from 700 to 800 men, and several more likely to soon be located there.

Over sixty tasty houses already built and this number will be doubled this year.

The lots are 40 by 120 feet. The streets laid out for a width of sixty feet, including sidewalks.

Seeing Sounds.

In an article headed, "What a Sound Looks Like," a New York paper tells some interesting facts about the phonograph. Does it not give your brain a tendency to swim when you try to realize that you can actually see a spoken word—not the reproduction of it in type or writing, but the very sounds, of which the word is composed, themselves.

The phonograph catches some words better than others. The most difficult are the words containing R, because that letter makes more sound waves than the consonants.

Curiously enough, loud noises do not disturb the air and make so many waves as some quieter ones, the only difference being that they are stronger waves, a difference of quality rather than of quantity. A sound having a certain number and kind of waves or atmospheric disturbances agitates the diaphragm of the phonograph, and this little plate is so delicate that it catches every one of them.

When the machine is turned back and it is set in motion from the other side by the needle dropping into the holes it has already made, the same motion of the diaphragm takes place, and it in turn creates sound waves exactly similar to the original ones, and which strike the ear in the same way. If you put your ear to a drum in a room where there is any noise, you will get the same reproduction of a sound. So closely do sound waves run together, that three or four words are recorded upon one inch of surface of the wax cylinder, and it takes a very strong magnifying glass to make them out.

A Remarkable Use for Silk.

One of the most remarkable uses to which silk and other fabrics are being put of late is the veneering of fancy furniture. The latest wrinkle has not as yet gone into general use, but the extent to which the idea can be utilized appears well nigh unlimited. A Philadelphia paper in this connection says:

In the parlor of a house on West Walnut street, which is tenanted by a wealthy merchant, there is a very beautiful display of veneering in silk and cretonne. The walls of the large room are done in raiced panels of plain wood, and over each of these panels a piece of silk, upon which is painted by hand a beautiful design of flowers is stretched and tacked on the back of the panel, so that there is not a crease to indicate the presence of so foreign a substance. Each alternate panel is covered with satin, and the sheen is simply beautiful under a mellow gas light The idea has even been carried to the fragile little table that stands in the centre of the room. That is covered with satin, on which a pretty baby face is painted by hand, and the substance has been treated with numerous coats of transparent varnishes which completely fill up the interstices in the fabric until it can scarcely be distinguished from highly polished wood. This system of decoration has been found to be quite as cheap as the wood veneering, and in richness of appearance the silk veneers appear fully equal to the finest effects in woodwork.

The Most Expensive Leather.

"The most costly leather in the world, so far as I know," said a dealer in fine skins and leathers, "is known to the trade as piano leather. American tanners years ago discovered the secret of making Russia leather, with its peculiarly pungent and lasting odor; but the secret of tanning piano leather is known only to a family of tanners in Thuringia, Germany. This leather has but one use, the covering of piano keys. A peculiar thing about it is that the skins from which it is tanned are procured almost entirely in America. It is a peculiar kind of buckskin. The skin of the common red or Virginia deer will not make the leather, a species of the animal known as the gray deer, and found only in the vincinity of the great northern lakes, alone furnishing the material. The German tanners have an agency in Detroit which collects the skins of this deer from the Indian and half breed hunters, who supply the market. The hunters are paid an average price of 20 cents a pound for the green skins. When the skins are returned to this country as piano leather they cost the piano manufacturer from $15 to $18 a pound. The world's supply of this invaluable and necessary material is supplied by the Kretzhmar family of tanners, who have six establishments in Germany, the largest and best at Care, in Thurngia."

How Animals Eat Grass.

It is a well-known fact that the different domestic animals of the farm all pull and eat their grass in different ways. This is partly due to several causes, such as the predilection of each kind for particular grasses and aversion to others, and also the arrangement of the incisor teeth in the mouth, as well as the size of the muzzle itself. The sheep is one of the closest feeders we have; in fact with the exception of the rabbit and the kangaroo, it will eat a pasture barer than any other animal. This is, of course, due to the small size of the mouth, together with its predilection for the finer grasses. Next to the sheep comes the horse in this respect, for, although his mouth is large, yet the fact that he has teeth above and below, enables him to bite close. It is very noticeable in a pasture where horses are alone that they eat over the land very unequally. Some of the "sweeter" spots are not touched, but left rough. Cattle, on the other hand, have not only a large muzzle, but also the absence of upper teeth, so that, of necessity, they can not bite fine or close, and, therefore, we find with them that their grass is rougher and less bare in parts than with the others.

Wise Words.

Earnestness is the path to immortality.

The scorners' delight is their scorning.

Never go back; success lies just beyond.

Friendship is the highest degree of perfection in society.

It is wise not to seek a secret and honest not to reveal it.

The blessed man does not sit in the seat of the scornful.

Did you ever stop to think what may happen in a minute?

Kindness will often succeed where eminent ability will fail.

Those who go for berries should not retreat from briars.

There is no better excess in the world than the excess of gratitude.

Genius leckons a man up, and if he attempts to climb will help him.

Politeness is as natural to delicate natures as perfume is to flowers.

Bring your will to your fate, and suit your mind to your circumstances.

Prosperity is no just scale; adversity is the only balance to weigh friends

How much more we might have learned if we had less to unlearn.

Life is no life without the blessing of a friendly and edifying conversation.

The surest way to please is to forget one's self and to think only of others.

Shun idleness; it is the rust that attaches itself to the most brilliant metals.

No principle is more noble, as there is none more holy, than that of a true obedience.

There is a power a hundred times more powerful than that of bayonets: it is the power of ideas.

If we had no defects we should not take so much pleasure in discovering those of others.

We know the value of a fortune when we have gained it, and that of a friend when we have lost it.

Those who seek happiness in ostentation and dissipation are like those who prefer the light of a candle to the splendor of the sun.

A weapon is anything that can serve to wound; and sentiments are perhaps the most cruel weapons man can employ to wound his fellow man.

Nothing sharpens the arrow of sarcasm so keenly as the courtesy that polishes it. No reproach is like that we clothe with a smile and present with a bow.

A homely man of merit is never repulsive. As soon as he is named his physique is forgotten; the mind passes through it to see the soul.

Thinkers are as scarce as gold; but he whose thought embraces all his subjects, who pursues it uninterruptedly and fearless of consequences, is a diamond of enormous size.

The tiniest daisy that smiles so sweetly at our feet owes its existence to the patient pushing upward of the small germ against all the obstacles of soil and stones; and, were it conscious, it might tell a tale of daily difficulty and danger sturdily met and bravely overcome. So in humanity itself all that is finest and most beautiful is interwined with difficulty.

Noises and Nerves.

The most sensitive, delicate and easily injured parts of the human system are the nerves. These never can become so accustomed to incessant strain as to escape injury. That which is unpleasant to the senses is always—and, so far as the sense of hearing is concerned, discordant noises always are—injurious to the nerves. The yelling of steam whistles, the hiss of steam pipes, the rattle and clash of wheels on stone covered streets, the rumble of street cars, the clangor of bells, the howling of hucksters, keep up a condition in which a healthy nervous system of natural strength and sensitiveness is impossible. And there is not one of those agencies that is not suppressed more or less completely in most of the great cities of the world.

In Berlin heavy wagons are not allowed on certain streets. In Paris any car load of rattling material must be fastened until it cannot rattle. Munich allows no bells on street cars. In Philadelphia church bells have been held a nuisance in certain neighborhoods by judicial ruling. Steam whistles are forbidden in nearly all the large cities of this country, and most of these noises in our advanced stage of civilization are utterly unnecessary. Clocks and watches are now so cheap and plentiful that steam whistles and bells to denote the time are useless. Why should not all useless noises, and nearly all are useless, be suppressed?

Paint the Shingles.

An Exchange very wisely remarks that it has always seemed singular that in the use of paint to preserve wood exposed to the weather, the fact that a shingle roof was omitted from the catalogue was invariably the rule. This idea or oversight was one of those things which custom becomes habit, and because everyone else did so, all the rest followed suit. If paint would be useful on any weather-exposed surface, it should certainly be on a roof. This fact goes without telling, and in the present style of suburban residences the roof receives its share of paint along with the rest of the builning, thus at once combining the useful with the beautiful. It is certainly singular that painting of roofs has not always prevailed and it adds much to the finished character of the building to see the roof painted.

Oh, What a Cough.

Oldest Church in the United States.

The Church of San Miguel was erected at San Miguel was erected at Santa Fe, New Mexico, seventy-seven years before the landing of the Pilgrims on Plymouth Rock, twenty years before the founding of St. Augustine, Florida, and fifty-three years after the landing of Columbus.

According to the learned researches of Father De Fouri, San Miguel's was built in 1543, and therefore is now three hundred and forty-five years old, making it, I think, without dispute, the oldest church anywhere north of the Mexican frontier. Like all the other churches of this part of America, it is built of adobes, on the simple plan of four plain, and very thick walls and a nearly flat roof supported by heavy beams. There are large brackets at each end of the beams elaborately carved. Over these rafters some kind of covering was placed to sustain the heavy mass of adobe clay that was placed thereon, and thus simply the roof was finished. The windows are small and well up toward the roof, obviously as preventives from Indian raid or incendiarism; as those were the times when men went to church with their hands on their swords. The sanctury was veiled off from the body of the church, and decorated as elaborately as the limited circumstances of the people would allow. On the sanctuary walls of San Miguel's yet hang two pictures of unknown age, but stained and and darkened by time. Both are representations of the Angelical Salutation. At the time of the pueblo rising in 1680, all the churches were destroyed, and San Miguel's shared the same fate.

In 1692 the Territory was reconquered. In 1710 the ancient church was restored and rebuilt as appears yet, in elaborately carved letters on one of the beams of the roof.

Dreams Indicatng Disease.

If science has dispelled such old wives' fables as that to dream of a marriage signified a death, or to dream of a cat meant to meet a foe, she has certainly added mysteries and terrors of her own to the subject. One learned man has actually tried to systematize those subtle premonitions—to make them more available for use and guidance. In his opinion.

"Lively dreams are in general a sign of excitement, of nervous action.

"Soft dreams are a sign of slight irritation of the head; often in nervous fevers announcing the approach of a favorable crisis.

"Frightful dreams are a sign of determination of blood to the head.

"Dreams of distorted forms are frequently a sign of obstructions and disease of the liver.

"Dreams in which the patient imagines torture or injury of any limb indicate disease in that limb.

"Dreams about death often precede apoplexy, which is connected with determination of blood to the head."

The Hideous Devil Fish.

The devil fish of tropical seas is one of the most hideous of sea monsters. One caught by a party of New York gentlemen in Florida within the last four weeks weighed 1000 pounds. He was nine feet long, his body being five feet wide, and fifteen feet when the fins were outspread. The eyes of this monster are in the shoulders, and his head and mouth sloped inward with a curve. Otherwise he was like an enormous bat, having, however, a tail like a whip lash. Drawn up on the beach, and his mouth fastened open, a fine view was had of his internal digestive arrangements. His Stomach was a hollow, like that of many a more deserving creature, and there were two or three rows of what looked like the teeth, jagged like saws, and through which the food probably passed. being ground on its way.

To Destroy Rats.

Some three weeks since, Mr. James Newell, a neighbor of mine, in reply to my question said: "If you will take a jar or pot, put it in your corncrib, fill it within four or five inches of top with water, put a double handful of cotton seed on top of the water, and pile the corn around so that the rats can easily reach the top, you will catch every rat that passes by; the rats will jump on the cotton seed." "The next day I tried the experiment, and three days after had my jar examined, and the servant pulled out thirty-one drowned rats. In sixteen days I had caught ninety-two rats." Newell says the rats never hurt his corn. I have repeated the story to several, and all who have tried it, have been successful. The best place to set your jar, is by the side or wall of the crib. All who are troubled with rats, try it.

Dobbins' Electric Soap
THE BEST FAMILY SOAP IN THE WORLD.
It is Strictly Pure. Uniform in Quality.

THE original formula for which we paid $50,000 twenty years ago has never been modified or changed in the slightest. This soap is identical in quality to-day with that made twenty years ago.

IT contains nothing that can injure the finest fabric. It brightens colors and bleaches whites.

IT washes flannels and blankets as no other soap in the world does—without shrinking—leaving them soft and white and like new.

READ THIS TWICE

THERE is a great saving of time, of labor, of soap, of fuel, and of the fabric, where Dobbins' Electric Soap is used according to directions.

ONE trial will demonstrate its great merit. It will pay you to make that trial.

LIKE all best things, it is extensively imitated and counterfeited.

Beware of Imitations.

INSIST upon Dobbins' Electric. Don't take Magnetic, Electro-Magic, Philadelphia Electric, or any other fraud, simply because it is cheap. They will ruin clothes, and are dear at any price. Ask for DOBBINS' ELECTRIC and take no other. Nearly every grocer from Maine to Mexico keeps it in stock. If yours hasn't it, he will order from his nearest wholesale grocer.

READ carefully the inside wrapper around each bar, and be careful to follow directions on each outside wrapper. You cannot afford to wait longer before trying for yourself this old, reliable, and truly wonderful while as convenient to the buyer as any instalment system, is a wholesale spot cash system to us. The co-operation of the club members sells us 38 watches in each $38 Watch Club, and we get cash from the Club for each watch before it goes out, though each member only pays $1 a week. This is why we give you more for your money than any one else and why we are doing the largest watch business in the world. We sell only first quality goods, but our prices are about what others get for second quality. Our $10 Silver Watch is a substantial Silver (not imitation of any kind) Stem-Wind American Lever Watch—either hunting case or open. Our $25.00 Watch is a Stem-wind, Open Face, first quality, stiffened Gold American Lever Watch, guaranteed to wear 20 years. It is fully equal to any watch sold for $35 by others. We find a first-class Stiffened Gold Case much more satisfactory and serviceable than any Solid Gold Case that can be sold at less than double the money, as cheap solid cases are invariably thin, weak, of low quality, and worthless after short use. Our $38 Watch contains numerous important patented improvements, of vital importance to accurate timing—Patent Dustproof, Patent Stem Wind, &c., which we control exclusively. It is fully equal in accuracy, appearance, durability and service, to any $75 Watch, either Open Face or Hunting. Our $43.00 Railroad Watch is especially constructed for the most exacting use, and is the best Railroad Watch made, Open Face or Hunting. All these prices are either all cash or in clubs, $1.00 a week. An Ajax Watch Insulator given free with each Watch.

OUR $1. A WEEK Club System

Differences in Faces.

"Few people know that no tw of a human face are just exactly said a photographic artist the day. He added: "In at least teen cases out of twenty the left the face is the most characteristic therefore, the strongest likeness often the right side is the most c People who desire to appear be on card board should pose with right side to the camera. The left of the face, though, makes a m tis ic picture."

"How do you account for th that the two sides of the face di much in appearance?"

"I do not know of any physi reason. An explanation was en me by a learned Swedenb which is, of course, from his standpoint. He said the diff looks of the two sides of a face wa known to his co-religionists an they had made a study of it spiritual and a beneficent po view. The left side of the face sented goodness, mercy, charity, such attributes, while the right was an expression of truth. I a talk with Henry Ward Beecher it and he could give no special so In our discussion we discarded theory that sleeping more on one than the other would affect the the face that was next the pillow er. Mr. Beecher slept more on his side, yet his face was stronger left side. You may be sure the Beecher was very entertaining remarks, but we did not decide question. Whittier, Bayard T and a host of noted men with have come in contact in the the last thirty years, all exhibi peculiar two-sided face characte Of course it is more sharply defi others. We all smile on the left of our face. Our facial muscles as it were, with more ease and on the left side. It is a very in ing study.

The Dread of Night Air.

An extraordinary fallacy is th of night air. What air can we b at night but night air? The ch between pure night air from w and foul air from within. Mos prefer the latter—an unacco choice. What will they say i proved to be true that fully one h all the diseases we suffer are occa by people sleeping with their w shut? An open window, most in the year, can never hurt an In great cities night air is ofte best and purest to be had in twenty hours. I could better understa ting the windows in town durin night, for the sake of the sick quiet, all tend to make night the time for airing the patient. O our highest medical authorities sumption and climate has told me the air of London is never so go after 10 o'clock at night. Alwa your rooms, then, from the outsid if possible. Windows are made to doors are made to shut—a truth w seems extremely difficult of appre sion. Every room must be aired without, every passage from with

Anecdote of Webster.

When quite young at school, Webster was one day guilty of a tion of the rules. He was detecte the act and called up by the teacher punishment. This was to be the fashioned feruling of the hand hand happened to be very dirty. K ing this, on his way to the tea desk he spat upon the palm o right hand, wiping it off on th of his pantaloons. "Give m hand, sir," said the teacher, ver ly. Out went the right han cleaned. The teacher looked a moment and said: "Daniel, will find another hand in this room as filthy as that I will let yo this time." Instantly from behi back came the left hand. "Here sir," was the reply. 'That will d time,' said the teacher; 'you can your seat, sir.'"

Stormy Parts of the Ocean.

The most violent hurricanes orig in the tropical latitudes; in the At tic Ocean, to the north or east West Indian Islands, and in the Pa fic, in the China Seas and the neighbor hood of the Philippine Islands. West Indian cyclones follow the of the Gulf stream, so the typhoo the great Pacific follow the great ic current which passes around East Indian Archipelago, the shores China and the Japanese Islands more continuously rough and part of the ocean does not perhaps than that in the neighborhood of Shetland Isles at the north of Sc where tee German and Atlantic connect, and where the currents both rapid and dangerous.
